EDUCATION AND AGING

DAVID A. PETERSON, JAMES E. THORNTON, and JAMES E. BIRREN, Editors

Andrus Gerontology Center
University of Southern California and

Donna E. Deutchman, Editorial Coordinator

Prentice-Hall, Inc., Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey 07632

CONTENTS

FOREWORD, xiii
By James E. Birren

PREFACE, xv

CHAPTER 1

A BRIEF HISTORY OF EDUCATION IN THE UNITED STATES
With Some Implications for the Public Education of Older Adults,* 1

By Huey B. Long

Historical and Philosophical Overview, 3

Historical Views of Education, 3
Summary, 14
Philosophical Considerations, 15
Orientation Toward Older People, 15
Conceptualization of Education, 16

Conceptualization of Adulthood, 17
Social Justice, 17
Economics, 18
Educational Goals and Purposes, 18
Goals and Aims, 19

Pragmatic Purposes of Education and Age, 20
Discussion, 23
Summary and Conclusions, 23
Implications, 25
Goals and Objectives of Education, 25
Frequency of Educational Opportunities, 25
Providers of Education for Older Adults, 25

References, 26

CHAPTER 2

AGING AND HIGHER EDUCATION

Older Students, Older Faculty, and Gerontology Instruction,* 30

By David A. Peterson

The Orientation of Higher Education in the United States, 31
The Effect of Demographic Change on Higher Education, 35
New and Nontraditional Students, 38
The Older Student on Campus, 42
Aging of the Faculty, 49
Gerontology Instruction and Research in Higher Education, 53
Implications and Conclusions, 55
References, 57

CHAPTER 3

LIFE SPAN LEARNING AND EDUCATION

A Conceptual Progression in the Life Course,* 62

By James E. Thornton

Introduction and Purpose, 62
Development and Learning, 63

Basic Assumptions about Development, 64
Basic Assumptions about Learning, 65
Learning Potential in Later Life, 67

Conceptualizing Learning through the Life Span, 70

Life-Span Developmental Periods, 70
Learning Concepts Shaping Development, 73
Salience of Goals and Outcomes in Development, 75

Conceptualizing Education through the Life Span, 76

Educational Configurations, 76
Salience of Concepts Shaping Institutional Forms, 78
Salience of Concepts Shaping Programs, 79

Intervention and Adult Education, 81

Interventions, 82
Adult Education and Intervention, 84
Adult Education as Activity, 85

Future Directions, 85

Summary, 87

References, 89

CHAPTER 4

TELEVISION AND THE ELDERLY

From Broadcasting to Narrowcasting,* 93

By Gerald A. Straka

The Role of Broadcasted Television in the Life of the Elderly, 96

Program Preferences, 98
Programs Designed for the Elderly, 98

The Potentials of Narrowcasting for Older Adults, 99

Attitudes of Older Adults toward the New Technology, 103

The Potential Use of Televised Education, 107

Early Use, 107
Existing Research, 108
The Function of Educators, 111

Summary and Outlook, 113
Conclusion, 116
References, 117

CHAPTER 5

LATE LIFE LEARNING IN THE INFORMATION SOCIETY, 122

By Harry R. Moody

Introduction, 122
The Psychology of Information Processing in Late Life, 123
Aging and Postindustrial Society, 127
Age Groups in the Information Society, 132
The Narrative Structure of the Life Course, 135
Conclusion: Some Implications for Older Adult Education, 142
References, 145

CHAPTER 6

EDUCATION, LIFESTYLE, AND THE HEALTH OF THE AGING, 149

By James P. Henry and John McCallum

Introduction, 149
Culture and Blood Pressure, 150
Social Change and Changes in Blood Pressure, 152
Cultures with Hypertension, but not Coronary Disease, 160
The Marmot-Syme Japanese-American Study, 160
The Roseto Study, 164
Personality Variables and Hypertension: A Summary, 168
Cynicism and the Type A Personality, 168
Tradition Versus Cultural Instability, 169
Traditional Religion, Social Supports, and Health, 171
Shifts in the Cultural Canon, 173
Stress as a Matter of Control versus Demand, 173

Prevention of Cardiovascular Disease by Psychosocial Intervention, 176

Religion and Education for Health, 177

Summary, 179

References, 179

CHAPTER 7

APPLICATION OF CLASSROOM HEALTH EDUCATION TO HEALTH BEHAVIOR IN DAILY LIFE, 185

By Gwen C. Uman and Penelope L. Richardson

Introduction, 185

Traditional View, 186

External Events, 187
Internal Events, 188

Alternative Theoretical Views, 189

Problem Solving, 189
Self-Help, 191
Change, 192
Conclusions about Views from the Literature, 194

Experiential Views, 195

Using Tactics, 196
Gathering Information, 197
Carrying Out Life Activities, 198
Reformulating Perceptions of the Problem, 198
Summary of the Experiential View, 199
Comparison of the Traditional View and the Experiential View, 200

Implications, 201

Teaching, 201
Research, 201
Policy, 202

References, 202

CHAPTER 8

THE EFFECTS OF PHYSICAL ACTIVITY ON THE PHYSIOLOGICAL AND PSYCHOLOGICAL HEALTH OF THE OLDER ADULT

Implications for Education, 205

By Priscilla Gilliam MacRae

Introduction, 205

Aging, 207

Physical Activity, 207

Health, 208

Contemporary Issues of Health, Physical Activity, and Aging, 208

Physiological Functioning, Aging, and Physical Activity, 209

Cardiovascular/Circulatory Systems, 212

Respiratory System, 213

Musculoskeletal System, 214

Nervous System, 216

Summary: Effects of Physical Activity on the Physiological Functioning of the Older Adult, 216

The Effects of Physical Activity on the Psychological Functioning of the Older Adult, 217

Behavioral Slowing, 217

Cognitive Functioning, 218

Self-Concept, Body Image, Depression, and Anxiety, 218

Summary: Effects of Physical Activity on the Psychological Functioning of the Older Adult, 219

Implications for Education, 220

Educational Curricula, 220

Research, 221

Community Service, 222

Conclusion, 222

References, 223

INDEXES, 231