

The Implementation

The TRIPS Agreement and the Global Politics of Intellectual Property Reform in Developing Countries

Carolyn Deere

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

O

Contents

List of Figure and Tables

xi

List of Abbreviations

xiii

1. The TRIPS Implementation Game: A Fight for Ideas	1
1.1. An Introduction to the Politics of IP and TRIPS	5
1.2. Variation in TRIPS Implementation	12
1.3. Existing Literature and Popular Narratives	14
1.4. Explaining Variation in TRIPS Implementation	17
1.5. Why This Book Matters	21
1.6. Methods and Sources	24
1.7. Scope	25
2. Developing Countries in the Global IP System	34
2.1. The Colonial Era: Variation and External Control	34
2.2. The Post-colonial Era: Reform and Resistance	37
2.3. The Counteroffensive for Stronger IP Protection	46
2.4. Implementation Amidst Contestation	56
3. Variation in TRIPS Implementation (1995-2007)	64
3.1. The TRIPS Outcome	64
3.2. Variation in the Timing of TRIPS Implementation	70
3.3. Variation in IP Standards and Use of TRIPS Flexibilities	74
3.4. A Typology of Variation	97
3.5. An Economic Explanation?	99
3.6. The Case for Political Analysis	104
4. Post-TRIPS Tension and Global IP Debates	113
4.1. The Push for TRIPS-Plus	114
4.2. The Resurgence of Developing Country Confidence	118
4.3. Growing Complexity in the Global IP System	129
4.4. Expanding Teams of Players	133
4.5. Conclusion	142
5. International Pressures on Developing Countries	150
5.1. Economic Pressure	151

Contents

5.2. Resistance and Retaliation	164
5.3. Ideational Power	167
5.4. Capacity-building	180
5.5. Conclusion	186
6. The Developing Country Dimension: How National Politics Mattered	196
6.1. Government Capacity on IP Decision-Making	197
6.2. Public Engagement	205
6.3. Government Coordination	211
6.4. Mini Studies of Variation	220
6.5. Conclusion	232
7. TRIPS Implementation in Francophone Africa	240
7.1. IP Reforms in the Poorest Countries: Expectations and Reality	243
7.2. From Colonization to the Revised Bangui Agreement	245
7.3. The Revised Bangui Agreement	252
7.4. The Bangui Revision Process	260
7.5. Capacity-building and Delegation in a Policymaking Vacuum	278
7.6. Conclusion	286
8. The Implementation Game and the Variation Puzzle	303
8.1. Global IP Politics	304
8.2. International Pressures	305
8.3. The National Dimension	309
8.4. Further Findings on Variation	315
8.5. Developing Countries in Evolving Global IP Debates	316
8.6. A Development-Oriented IP Agenda	320
Appendices
1. Selection of interviews	325
2. Timeline of international IP agreements	330
3. Examples of increase in IP standards in developing country WTO members from 1988 to 2007	331
4. Variation in use of copyright flexibilities by selected developing country WTO members in the Asia-Pacific	333
5. Examples of developing countries with bilateral agreements that include IP provisions	335
6. Variation in TRIPS-plus provisions of selected U.S. FTAs	338
7. U.S. Special 301 pressure on developing country WTO members and WTO disputes filed (1995-2007)	341
Bibliography	343
Index	396