

Honecker's children

Youth and patriotism in East(ern)
Germany, 1979–2002

Anna Saunders

MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY PRESS

Manchester and New York

distributed exclusively in the USA by Palgrave

Contents

List of tables and figures	page vii
Acknowledgements	viii
List of abbreviations and key terms	x
Introduction: Honecker's Germany – a world of the past?	1
Eastern identity in the wake of the GDR	3
Frameworks: defining the GDR in the 1980s	7
Growing up under Honecker	11
Researching young behaviours	15
1 The parameters of patriotism	24
Nation and state	25
Germany: problematic patriotisms	28
The GDR's patriotic programme	31
Conclusion	43
2 Young people of the 1980s: a generation of loyal patriots?	50
The foundations of identity: historical consciousness	51
'Peace must be armed!': protecting the fatherland	58
'Educating hatred': young people and the 'imperialist' West	68
Proletarian internationalism: the politics of solidarity	78
Rooted in the present? Pride in the achievements of the GDR	87
Conclusion	101
3 October 1989–October 1990: the rise and fall of a GDR identity	117
Reform and renewal: education and youth work during the Wende	120

Hope of a reformed socialism: 9 October–9 November 1989	124
From socialism to scepticism: 9 November 1989–18 March 1990	127
The GDR becomes history: 18 March–3 October 1990	138
Conclusion	141
4 Civic loyalties in the wake of unification	147
Societal change and education in the absence of the blue shirt	148
The double burden of overcoming the past: historical consciousness in united Germany	152
Military loyalties in the absence of the enemy	167
International allegiances in a new world order	176
United yet divided? Social, economic and political trends since the Wende	184
Conclusion	202
5 Conclusion: death of the GDR – rebirth of an eastern identity?	220
Select bibliography	234
Index	246