

Berichte zur beruflichen Bildung
Heft 107/1

Brigitte Schmidt-Hackenberg, Ingrid Höpke,
Ilse G. Lemke, Klaus Pampus, Dietrich Weissker

NEW METHODOLOGIES FOR IN-COMPANY INITIAL VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Findings from Pilot Projects

Bibliothek für Berufspädagogik
TU Darmstadt

59204157

Herausgeber: Bundesinstitut für Berufsbildung · Der Generalsekretär

Contents	Page
1 Introduction	7
1.1 Promotion of new training methodologies	7
1.2 Research method and data source	8
1.3 Scientific background and monitoring	9
2 Findings	10
2.1 Bergbau AG Lippe, Recklinghausen (mining sector) Joint project "Motorized sailing ship"	10
2.2 Daimler Benz AG, Gaggenau Project-oriented training in the metalworking field	12
2.3 Deutsche Bundesbahn, Frankfurt am Main (German railways) Developing self-reliance in vocational training	14
2.4 Ford-Werke AG, Cologne Self-paced learning	16
2.5 Hoesch-Stahl AG, Dortmund (steel industry) "Leittext" system for manufacturing tasks in fitter occupations	18
2.6 J.M. Voith GmbH, Heidenheim (engineering industry) Creativity-developing assignments	20
2.7 Paintshops of the company Heinrich Schmid GmbH & Co, Reutlingen Construction site for trainees	22
2.8 Stahlwerke Peine-Salzgitter AG, Salzgitter (steel industry) "Hobby machine" teaching/learning system	24

2.9	Stahlwerke Peine-Salzgitter AG, Salzgitter Leittext-guided investigation projects using modern office technologies	27
2.10	VEBA OEL AG, Gelsenkirchen (petrochemicals industry) Basic training in metalworking oriented towards project work and familiarization with company operations.....	30
3	Final Note: A General View of the Dual System.....	33
	English-German List of Occupations	36
	References	37

Chapter 2 translated by Linda J. Mayes

For detailed information as to sources and references consult the original edition "Neue Ausbildungsmethoden in der betrieblichen Berufsausbildung. Ergebnisse aus Modellversuchen". (3. Auflage) Berlin: Bundesinstitut für Berufsbildung 1990. (Berichte zur beruflichen Bildung, Heft 107) ISBN 3-88555-377-5