

Collaborative Learning

Higher Education, Interdependence,
and the Authority of Knowledge

Second Edition

Kenneth A. Bruffee

The Johns Hopkins University Press
Baltimore and London

Contents

Preface xi

Acknowledgments xix

Part I

Collaborative Learning: What It Is and What It's About

One

Collaboration, Conversation, and Reacculturation 3

Two

Consensus Groups:

One Kind of Classroom Collaboration 21

Three

Writing and Collaboration 53

Four

Toward Reconstructing American Classrooms 63

Five

Collaborative Learning and Cooperative Learning 80

Six

Peer Tutoring and Institutional Change 93

Seven

Collaborative Learning and Computers 111

Contents

Part II

Higher Education, Interdependence, and the Authority of Knowledge

Eight

Education as Conversation 133

Nine

The Authority of College and University Professors 149

Ten

Science and Engineering in a Poststructural World 165

Eleven

The Procrustean Bed of Cognitive Thought 179

Twelve

A Plurality of Forces, Desires, and Not Wholly Commensurable Visions 196

Thirteen

Reading Literature as Common Property 215

Fourteen

A Nonfoundational Curriculum 231

Fifteen

Collaborative Learning and the Collaboratively Learned:
A Postscript on Graduate Education 246

Appendix A

Classroom and Laboratory Design 259

Appendix B

Research on Collaborative Learning 263

Contents

Appendix C
Some Notes on Nesting	267
Notes	273
Glossary	293
Works Cited	299
Index	311