

Literature, Politics and Culture in Postwar Britain

Alan Sinfield

Basil Blackwell

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Note on notes	viii
1 Introduction	1
2 War stories	6
Bringing us victory; consensus and its enemies; the broken promise
3 Literature and cultural production	23
Telling stories; literature as a cultural apparatus; contesting stories; literature and intervention
4 Class/culture/welfare	39
Culture, class and dissidence; 'a Woolworth life': culture under threat; literature and welfare-capitalism; culture preserved; discrimination; after welfare
5 Queers, treachery and the literary establishment	60
The return of Ambrose Silk; civilization and the 'effeminate'; the homosexual disturbance; treachery and after; sex and the Movement
6 Freedom and the Cold War	86
Existentialism and politics; the Cold War; the myth of 1984; the Free World and free literature; the free market; free – for what?
7 Cultural plunder and the savage within	116
Cultural plunder; phobic and structural racism; colonial crisis; literature and the metropolis; a crisis of self esteem; the savage within; nature and culture
8 Making a scene	152
Putting on the style; music and movement; Blacks, existentialists and Beats; reasons for attendance; lipstick on your collar; commerce and authenticity

9	Reinventing Modernism	182
	Anglo-Saxon attitudes; Modernism in the global village; alienation; conductors; the politics of English studies; journalism and literature
10	Women writing: Sylvia Plath	203
	What happened to feminism; the politics of madness; women writing; the scriptor scripted; TH; rabbit catcher; the case for extremism; afterlife
11	The rise of Left-culturism	232
	Class and the establishment; socialism with a British face; CND and a new-left intelligentsia; Left-culturism; the state and the left
12	Intellectuals and workers	253
	What about the workers?; new-left subculture; the working class revisited; cultural work
13	The ways we live now	277
	The failure of welfare-capitalism; the failure of 'good' culture; Postmodernism and standards; new-right cultural production; dismantling 'the culture'; freedom once more
	List of books and articles cited	311
	Index	334