

Citizens of This Country: The Asian-British

Mary Stopes-Roe and
Raymond Cochrane

MULTILINGUAL MATTERS LTD
Clevedon • Philadelphia

Contents

Preface	ix
List of Tables	x
1. Introduction	1
2. Survey and Sample	8
Historical Overview	8
Assimilation and Conflict	9
Locations	13
Population and Sample	15
Questionnaire Construction	19
Demographic Outline of the Families	21
Socioeconomic Status	21
Education and Qualifications	22
Employment	24
3. The Marriage Question	28
Married Young People	31
Parental authority	32
Parental concern	33
Parental responsibility	33
Family reputation	34
Variety of acceptance	34
The Unmarried Young People	36
The experience of others	37
Prediction of modified or cooperative traditional marriage	38
Predictions of traditional or of independent marriage	40
Acceptance of the tradition	40
Strategies Used by the Married	41
Strategies Used by the Unmarried	42
The British View of Arranged Marriage	43
Ethnicity of Spouse	45

Asian Views of the Principles of Intermarriage	47
Reasons Against Mixed Marriage.....	47
Religion	47
Family	48
Communication	49
Children	49
Sex Differences	50
English Character	51
Prejudice	51
Conclusions	52

4. The Family	53
Index of Traditionalism	57
Effect of ethnic group	57
Effect of generation	58
Effect of gender	60
Maintenance of Traditionalism	61
Relaxation of Traditionalism: The Evaluation of Change	63
Change in the family's environment	64
Change in young people	65
Contact Between the Generations	66
The Next Generation	67
Agreement Between the Generations	67
Living with Parents	69
The Practical Utility of the Extended Family	70
The Family and the Individual	72
The Reputation of the Family	75
Conclusions	77

5. Life in the New Country	79
Families and Young People	81
Schools and Education	86
Separated or Integrated Schools	92
The World of Work	96
Conclusions	98

6. Prejudice	101
The Indices	104
Relationship Between the Indices	104
Sex and Generation Effects	107
Asians	107
British attitudes	109

The Influence of the Media.....	111
Hostility and Hypocrisy	113
The Separate Situations.....	114
Comments on prejudice in public places	115
Comments on prejudice in employment	116
Comments on housing.....	119
Comments on police prejudice.....	120
Conclusions	122
 7. Settling In: Social Contacts.....	125
Index of Social Assimilation.....	126
Employment and education contacts	127
Neighbourhood contacts.....	128
Personal contacts	129
Contact Within Own Ethnic Group	131
Those in the country of origin	131
Contact with those in Britain	134
Index of Own-group Social Contact.....	135
Relationship Between the Two Contact Systems	136
The Cultural Background of Marriage Partners	136
Social Support and Confidante Groups	140
Category of confidante.....	142
First-named confidante.....	143
Sex of confidante	144
Ethnicity of confidantes	145
Quality of confidante contact.....	146
 8. Settling In: Changing Customs and Personal Identity	147
Index of Cultural Assimilation.....	148
The media.....	150
Use of English.....	151
Food and drink	153
Dress	154
Personal Identity.....	156
Index of Identificational Assimilation	156
Adapting Customs: Desirable or Undesirable?.....	157
Dress and diet.....	157
Increasing social contact with the British and women's employment	159
Intermarriage	161
The Place of Religion and Language.....	163
Religion: spiritual or social	163

Passing on the religion	165
Language preference	166
Where to Live, Asia or Britain	166
Where to Belong: The Home Country	169
Identity as Asian or British	171
Feeling Different	172
Relationship Between the Three Measures of Assimilation:
The Social, Cultural and Identificational Dimensions	174
9. Looking into the Future: Predictions and Opinions	176
The Future of Dress and Diet	176
Future for Social Contact and Women's Employment	179
Future of Intermarriage	179
The Myth of Return	181
Harmony or Threat?	184
The Future of Race Relations	188
10. Citizens of this Country	193
References	210
Further Reading	215
Appendix: Questionnaire	218