

Enterprise Clusters and Networks in Developing Countries

edited by

MEINE PIETER VAN DIJK
and
ROBERTA RABELLOTTI

FRANK CASS • LONDON

in association with

EADI

The European Association of Development Research and Training Institutes (EADI), Geneva

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
------------------------------	-----

1. Clusters and Networks as Sources of Co-operation and Technology Diffusion for Small Enterprises in Developing Countries Meine Pieter van Dijk and Roberta Rabellotti	1
---	---

PART I: CLUSTERS, EXTERNAL ECONOMIES AND CO-OPERATION

2. Clusters of Enterprises Within Systems of Production and Distribution: Collective Efficiency and Transaction Costs Poul Ove Pedersen	11
3. Footwear Industrial Districts in Italy and Mexico Roberta Rabellotti	30
4. The Significance of Spatial Clustering: External Economies in the Peruvian Small-Scale Clothing Industry Evert-Jan Visser	61

PART II: FLEXIBLE SPECIALISATION, NETWORKS OR GHETTOS?

5. Opportunities for Women in Ougadougou's Informal Sector: An Analysis Based on the Flexible Specialisation Concept Hanneke Dijkman and Meine Pieter van Dijk	93
6. Industrial District or Garment Ghetto? Nairobi's Mini-Manufacturers Dorothy McCormick	109
7. Small Enterprise Associations and Networks: Evidence from Accra Meine Pieter van Dijk	131

PART III: EXAMPLES: TECHNOLOGY, CREDIT AND INTERNATIONALISATION

8. Trust Building in Tanzania's Informal Credit Transactions M.S.D. Bagachwa	155
--	-----

9. Enterprise Networks and Technological Change: Aspects of Light Engineering and Metal Working in Accra
Arni Sverrisson 169
10. From SMEs to Industrial Districts in the Process of Internationalisation: Theory and Practice
Michelle Bagella and Carlo Pietrobelli 191