

CLASS, COMMUNITY, AND COLLECTIVE ACTION

Social Change in Two British Coalfields, 1850–1926

DAVID GILBERT

CLARENDON PRESS · OXFORD

1992

CONTENTS

Abbreviations	ix
List of Maps	x
1 Traditions of Community	1
2 Mining Communities and Collective Action	9
Kerr and Siegal: The Isolated Mass and Collective Action	10
Olson: Small Groups and Collective Action	16
Craig Calhoun and Communal Collective Action	30
Mining Towns and Villages as Communities	44
3 South Wales	54
The Valleys: The Physical Limits to Municipality	55
The Structure of a Local Society	60
Local Politics: The Axis of Change	70
The Decline of Mabonism	74
The Miners' Next Step: Class Action and Local Autonomy	78
The Reorganization of the Union	82
The Lodge in its Community	88
The Strikes of the 1920s	93
The Strange Death of Liberal Wales: A Sociological Revolution?	107
4 Ynysybwl	110
The Role of the Chapels	114
The Colliery Company in the Village	118
The Decline of the Company's Influence and the Rise of the Lodge	120
Labour Leaders and Community Leaders: John Morgan and Richard Woosnam	126
The Social Change in Ynysybwl	128
Strikes in Ynysybwl	131
5 Nottinghamshire	141
Socks and the Squirearchy	144
Butties and Sticky Cherries	150

Religion and the Miners	158
The Development of a Regional Society	162
The Political Sociology of the Coalfield	170
Nottinghamshire in the Lock-outs	185
The Social Origins of Spencerism?	198
6 Hucknall	206
Before the Mines	207
The Coming of the Pits	212
John Edward Ellis and the New Middle Class	215
Labour Relations and Working-class Organization	221
Hucknall into the Twentieth Century	226
Strikes and Hucknall	231
7 Class, Community, and Collective Action	245
Communities and Regions	245
Deference and Radicalism	249
Community and Collective Action	254
Appendix	259
Bibliography	274
Index	285