

Europe Competing in the Global Economy

Reports of the Competitiveness Advisory Group

Edited by

Alexis Jacquemin and Lucio R. Pench

Preface by

Jacques Santer

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Lyme, US

Contents

LIST OF FIGURES	ix
LIST OF TABLES	xi
PREFACE
Jacques Santer	xiii

WHAT COMPETITIVENESS FOR EUROPE?

AN INTRODUCTION

Alexis Jacquemin and Lucio R. Pensch	1
---	---

ENHANCING EUROPEAN COMPETITIVENESS

FOUR REPORTS

Competitiveness Advisory Group

Members of the Competitiveness Advisory Group	44
--	----

1. FIRST REPORT

1.1. Competitiveness and the European Economy	49
1.1.1. The challenge	49
1.1.2. The significance of competitiveness	50
1.1.3. Exploit our potential	51
1.1.4. Where we are now	52
1.2. Completing the Internal Market	59
1.2.1. The Internal Market - accelerate implementation	59
1.2.2. Improved infrastructure - Trans European Networks (TENs)	61
1.2.3. The New Europe: West and East stronger together	63
1.3. Strengthening the European Enterprise	67

1.3.1. Benchmarking performance	67
1.3.2. Removing the barriers to innovation and the application of technology	68
1.3.3. Encouraging the development of small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs)	70
1.4. Reaping Human Resources	73
1.4.1. The information society and the learning society	73
1.4.2. A strategic approach	74
1.4.3. Towards a learning society	76
1.4.4. Closer to the learning society	78
 2. SECOND REPORT
 2.1. Introduction	 83
2.2. The Role of the State in the Provision and Regulation of Basic Infrastructures	 89
2.2.1. Challenges and issues in some European public-sector reforms	91
2.2.2. Lessons from public-sector reforms	95
2.2.3. The continuing process of change	97
2.3. Small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), Innovation and Research and Development	 99
2.3.1. Research infrastructure	100
2.3.2. Finance	101
2.3.3. Regulation	103
2.4. The Company and Environmental Policy	107
2.5. The Meaning of the Learning Society	111
2.5.1. Innovators in the learning society	113
2.5.2. Knowledge Resource Centres	116
 3. THIRD REPORT
 3.1. Summary and Conclusions	 121

3.2. Labour Market, Unemployment and Competitiveness	125
3.2.1. The need for a flexible response	127
3.2.2. Establishing a growth-oriented scenario	131
3.2.3. Reforming labour market institutions and building new industrial relations	134
3.3. Labour Market Reform	137
3.3.1. A supporting framework: collective agreements and confidence pacts	137
3.3.2. Youth employment	140
3.3.3. Low-skilled unemployment	142
3.3.4. Minimum wages	144
3.3.5. Unemployment and poverty traps	146
3.3.6. Long-term unemployment	147
3.3.7. Labour mobility	149
3.3.8. Policy recommendations	150
3.4. The Company and Employment	153
3.4.1. A case study approach	154
3.4.2. The direction of change, the benefits, the obstacles	168
3.4.3. Policy recommendations	171
 4. FOURTH REPORT
 4.1. Europe's Place in a Globalizing World Economy	177
4.2. Benchmarks for Europe: The Dynamism of Asia	183
4.2.1. Institutional barriers to market access within the European Union	183
4.2.2. Barriers to trade with major international markets	186
4.2.3. Barriers to international investment	188
4.3. High-Level Standards, High-Level Benchmarks	199
 INDEX	201