

FIGHTING WORDS

WORKING-CLASS FORMATION, COLLECTIVE ACTION, AND DISCOURSE IN EARLY NINETEENTH-CENTURY ENGLAND

MARC W. STEINBERG

Cornell University Press ITHACA AND LONDON

Contents

Tables	ix
Preface	xi
Abbreviations	xvii
PRELIMINARIES
Introduction: Theoretical and Historiographical Considerations	1
1 Patterns of English Labor Contention in the Early Nineteenth Century	23
2 A Tale of Two Areas	36
SPITALFIELDS
3 The Silk Trade: Memory, Market, and Means of Production	49
4 Local Political Culture: From Reciprocity to Hegemony	67
5 The Repeal of the Spitalfields Acts	87
6 Post-Repeal Collective Actions: Battling the Hydra of Degradation	101
ASHTON-STALYBRIDGE
7 King Cotton: Markets, Mills, and Mechanics	129
8 Class Structure, Class Cultures, and Social Lives	151
9 Local Political Culture: The Stranglehold of Wealth	167
10 The Vitriol of Conflict -	187
11 Class War: The Spinners' Strikes of 1830-1831	206
	vii

CONCLUSION

12	Class Formation, Collective Action, and the Role of Discourse	229
	Appendix 1. Spitalfields weavers' collective actions, c. 1825–1831	243
	Appendix 2. Ashton and Stalybridge spinners' collective actions, April 1830–January 1831	247
	References	249
	Index	277