

admiralty islands art from the south seas

Edited by Christian Kaufmann, Christin Kocher Schmid and Sylvia Ohnemus with contributions by Wal Ambrose, Ingrid Heermann, Dieter Heintze, Christian Kaufmann, Jean Kennedy, Christin Kocher Schmid, Sylvia Ohnemus, Ton Otto, Nathalie Rochard, Robin Torrence and Margaret Tuckson

Field photographs by Alfred Bühler and others

Table of contents

Lorenz Homberger	9	Preface
Christian Kaufmann	11	Introduction
Jean Kennedy	17	Manus from the Beginning: an archaeological overview
Ton Otto	29	Manus: the historical and social context
Christin Kocher Schmid	38	Houses and Shells
Sylvia Ohnemus	40	A Bride Covered in Ornaments
Christian Kaufmann	43	Arts of the Admiralty Islands: long overlooked, and more complex than most observers believe
Sylvia Ohnemus	53	The Rich Variety of Textile Art
Sylvia Ohnemus	60	About Patterns and Motifs
Christin Kocher Schmid	62	Atuna (Parinarium) Putty: a versatile vegetable material
Margaret Tuckson	64	Pottery – a now lost art tradition
Wal Ambrose	67	From very old to new, obsidian artefacts in the Admiralty Islands
Robin Torrence	73	Obsidian-tipped Spears and Daggers: what can we learn from 130 years of museum collecting
Dieter Heintze	81	Taim bilong ol Jeman: dealing with traders, officials, missionaries, anthropologists
Nathalie Rochard	90	Admiralty Islands Collections in French Museums: the Korrigane example
Ingrid Heermann	92	Seen in a Wider Perspective: the art forms of the Admiralty Islands
	102	Catalogue
	206	Bibliography
	211	Photo and Illustration credits