

Jewish Bialystok and Its Diaspora

REBECCA KOBRIN

Indiana University Press
Bloomington and Indianapolis

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Note on Orthography and Transliteration xiii

INTRODUCTION

Between Exile and Empire:
Visions of Jewish Dispersal in the Age of Mass Migration 1

CHAPTER 1

The Dispersal Within: Bialystok, Jewish Migration, and Urban Life in the Borderlands of Eastern Europe 19

CHAPTER 2

Rebuilding Homeland in Promised Lands 69

CHAPTER 3

“Buying Bricks for Bialystok”: Philanthropy and the Bonds of the New Jewish Diaspora 131

CHAPTER 4

Rewriting the Jewish Diaspora: Images of Bialystok in the Transnational Bialystok Jewish Press, 1921–1949 176

CHAPTER 5

Shifting Centers, Conflicting Philanthropists:
Rebuilding, Resettling, and Remembering Jewish Bialystok in the Post-Holocaust Era 207

EPILOGUE

Diaspora and the Politics of East European Jewish Identity in the Age of Mass Migration 244

Notes 253

Bibliography 313

Index 351