

Something To Believe In

CREATING TRUST AND HOPE IN ORGANISATIONS: STORIES OF TRANSPARENCY, ACCOUNTABILITY AND GOVERNANCE

EDITED BY RUPESH A. SHAH, DAVID F. MURPHY
AND MALCOLM McINTOSH

Published in association with:

New Academy of Business

Greenleaf
PUBLISHING
2 0 0 3

Contents

Acknowledgements	8
Foreword	9
Sharon Capeling-Alakija, Executive Co-ordinator, United Nations Volunteers
Introduction	11
Rupesh A. Shah, David F. Murphy and Malcolm McIntosh
Part 1: Through some looking glasses	21
1. Something to have struggled for and now to believe in	22
T.M. Mbeki, then Vice President of the Republic of South Africa
2. PlanetHome	24
Malcolm McIntosh, writer and teacher, UK
3. From terrorism to trust: trusting our nature?	30
Mary-Jayne Rust, Jungian Analyst (Society of Analytical Psychology] and Art Therapist
4. Partnering trust: India's corporate social responsibility heritage..	36
Viraal B. Balsari, Consultant, Energy Environment Corporate Responsibility, TERI (The Energy and Resources Institute]/TERI-Europe
5. Tolerance	39
E.M. Forster

Part 2: How could it be possible to believe in our corporations?	43
6. Demanding corporate responsibility is the key: the creation of a movement for corporate responsibility in Ghana	44
Joseph Yaw Boateng, United Nations Volunteer, Association of Ghana Industries, Ghana
7. Corporate responsibility: the emerging South Asian agenda	53
Ritu Kumar, TERI-Europe, UK
8. Corporate governance, shareholder interests and managerial accountability in turbulent times	59
Scott Bourke and Neil E. Bechervaise, Australian Graduate School of Entrepreneurship, Australia
9. Strange bedfellows make for democratic deficits: the rise and challenges of private corporate social responsibility engagement . 79
Matthew J. Hirschland, Department of Political Science, University of Colorado at Boulder, USA
10. The rise of the 'abdroids'	98
Roger Warren Evans, company director, barrister-at-law, UK
11. Changing focus: a business school for sustainable development .	104
Juliet Roper, Eva Collins and Mike Pratt, University of Waikato Management School, New Zealand
Part 3s Auditing for whom?	109
12. Love in a time of chocolate: the corporate discipline of compassion	110
Adrian Henriques, Middlesex University, UK
13. Trouble at the Hard Rock Cafe: diamonds and corporate social responsibility	115
Ian Smillie and Ralph Hazleton, Partnership Africa Canada
14. In search of transparency: corporate codes of conduct and women workers in Central America	133
Marina Prieto-Carron, School for Policy Studies, University of Bristol; Associate of the New Academy of Business
15. Voluntary governance or a contradiction in terms? Are voluntary codes accountable and transparent governance tools?	142
Simon B. Archer, Torys LLP, Canada, and S. Tina Piper, Balliol College, University of Oxford, UK

16. The auditor has no clothes: challenging the pursuit of objectivity in auditing.	166
Rupesh A. Shah, New Academy of Business, UK
Part 4: New initiatives	181
17. In the business of making peace: La Frutera and Paglas in the Philippines.	182
Charmaine Nuguid-Anden, United Nations Volunteer, Philippine Business for Social Progress
18. Corporate responsibility in New Zealand: a case study.	190
Bob Frame, Richard Gordon and Ian Whitehouse, Landcare Research, New Zealand
19. Reforming government; working with business: the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform in Lebanon.	207
Lubna Forzley, United Nations Volunteer, UNDP Lebanon
20. Living and learning in Stellenbosch, South Africa.	216
Mark Swilling and Eve Annecke, Sustainability Institute, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa
21. It's the film that matters, not the photo: good governance in development co-operation.	224
David F. Murphy, New Academy of Business, UK
Part 5s Conclusion	231
22. Under the trumpet flower.	232
Abdul Cader Riswana, Ismael Ashraff, Jinutheen Rasmina, Kanathan Dinojit and Stepan Sampath, The Butterfly Garden of Batticaloa, Sri Lanka
List of abbreviations.	236
Index.	239