

International migration and development in the Arab region

J. S. Birks and C. A. Sinclair

Published with the financial support of the United Nations Fund for Population Activities

International Labour Office Geneva

CONTENTS

Preface	v
1. Introduction	1
Background	1
Availability of data	4
Methodological frameworks for migration studies	5
Execution of the study	7
Regional scope of the study	8
2. Social and economic background	11
The wide variations in income and development	11
Populations and human capital	12
Some demographic characteristics	12
Education and human capital	13
The nature of education	14
The nature of modern economic development	17
Capital-rich States	17
Capital-poor States	18
Conclusion	19
Labour markets in capital-rich and capital-poor States	20
Capital-rich States	20
Capital-poor States	21
The resulting migration system	22
Countries of employment	23
Countries of origin	24
3. Patterns in international labour movements	25
Evolution of the patterns	25
Scale of migrant labour movements in 1975	26
Composition and distribution of migrant workforces in 1975	27
1975: changing patterns of migration	29
A new scale of labour imports from outside the Arab world	31
Labour imports from the Orient	32
Gross numbers moving internationally: migrant workers and their dependants	33
Conclusion	34

4. Labour migration and countries of origin	37
Tunisia	38
Scale of Tunisian labour migration	38
Pattern of Tunisian migration to the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya	39
Conclusion	40
The Sudan	40
Traditions of immigration into the Sudan	40
Sudanese migration and the domestic labour market	41
Conclusion	43
Egypt	43
Scale of Egyptian labour migration	43
Egyptians abroad and the domestic labour market in 1975	44
Egyptians in the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya	45
Egyptians in Saudi Arabia	45
Trends in labour migration from Egypt	46
Jordan	46
Scale of Jordanian labour migration	47
Geographical distribution of Jordanian migrant workers	48
Jordanians abroad: Kuwait	49
Conclusion	50
Syrian Arab Republic	50
The Syrian tradition of migration	53
Modern Syrian labour migration	54
Syrians abroad: Kuwait	54
Syrian migration: a broader perspective	55
Conclusion	56
Yemen	57
Number of Yemenites abroad and the domestic labour force	57
Impact of labour migration on the economy	58
Volume and significance of remittances	58
Intangible acquisitions of migrants	59
Conclusion	59
Oman	60
Number of Omanis abroad and the domestic labour force	60
Impact of labour migration on the rural economy	61
Oman as a country of employment	62
The future	63
Conclusion	63
5. Labour migration and countries of employment	65
Scale of labour importing	65
Kuwait	66
Nature of the migrant community in Kuwait	66
Economic significance of migrants in Kuwait	66
Conclusion	68
Qatar	69
Pattern of migration	70
Significance of migrants within the labour force	71
United Arab Emirates	72
Pattern of migration	72
Significance of migrants' employment	73
Bahrain	74
Pattern of migration	74
The Gulf States: a summary	75

Saudi Arabia	75
Pattern of migration	76
Contribution of nationals to the labour market	76
Migrants in the workforce	77
Conclusion	77
Libyan Arab Jamahiriya	78
Pattern of migration	78
Significance of migrant workers in the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya	79
Post-1975 pattern and volume of migration	80
Conclusion	80
Conclusion	81
6. Leading issues in labour migration	83
Clandestine migration	83
Bilateral labour exchange agreements and compensating countries of origin of labour	84
Bilateral labour exchange agreements	84
Compensating countries of origin of labour	86
Replacement migration	86
The impact on agriculture	89
Debilitation of Omani agriculture	89
Agricultural decline in Yemen	90
Jordanian agriculture relies upon replacement labour	91
Occupational mobility and the response of domestic labour markets to exports of labour	91
Occupational mobility in Jordan	91
Occupational immobility in Egypt	94
Segmentation of the Egyptian urban labour market	96
Implications of the analysis	98
A rate-of-return approach to migration	99
Unstable nature of the migration system	101
Remittances	102
Growth of remittances	102
Government attempts to use remittances	104
Future of remittances	106
Nature of selection of migrants	107
Agents and the supply of Indian and Pakistani labour	108
The Oriental connection	109
Enclave development in the capital-rich States	110
The Oriental workforces	111
Pattern of international migration in the Arab world, 1975-80	113
Domestic demand for and supply of labour	113
External supply of labour	114
Resolution of demand and supply	114
Scenario One: maximum Arab penetration of capital-rich labour markets	115
Scenario Two: a selective labour market	115
7. A regional perspective: coming to terms with labour movements	117
Migration for employment and economic development	117
Capital-rich States	117
Capital-poor States	119
The widening disparity in wealth: labour migration and informal employment	121
Policy options open to the Arab labour suppliers	124