

Shamanism,
A Study in Colonialism, and Terror and the Wild Man
Healing

Michael Taussig

The University of Chicago Press

Chicago and London

CONTENTS

Maps	ix
Author's Note	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv

PART ONE: TERROR

1	Culture of Terror, Space of Death	3
2	Casement to Grey	37
3	The Economy of Terror	51
4	Jungle and Savagery	74
5	The Image of the Auca : Ur-Mythology and Colonial Modernism	93
6	The Colonial Mirror of Production	127

PART TWO: HEALING

7	A Case of Fortune and Misfortune	139
8	Magical Realism	165
9	Las Tres Potencias : The Magic of the Races	171
10	The Wild Woman of the Forest Becomes Our Lady of Remedies	188
11	Wildness	209
12	Indian Fat	221
13	Surplus Value	242
14	Hunting Magic	255
15	The Book of Magia	259
16	Filth and the Magic of the Modern	274
17	Revolutionary Plants	284

18	On the Indian's Back: The Moral Topography of the Andes and Its Conquest	287
19	Even the Dogs Were Crying	336
20	The Old Soldier Remembers	337
21	Toughness and Tenderness in the Wild Man's Lair: The Everyday as Impenetrable, the Impenetrable as Everyday	342
22	Casemiro and the Tiger	358
23	Priests and Shamans	364
24	History as Sorcery	366
25	Envy and Implicit Social Knowledge	393
26	The Whirlpool	413
27	Montage	435
28	To Become a Healer	447
29	Marlene	468
	Notes	475
	Bibliography	495
	Index	503