

ALBUM OF SCIENCE

From Leonardo to Lavoisier
1450–1800

I. BERNARD COHEN

I. B. COHEN, GENERAL EDITOR, ALBUMS OF SCIENCE

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS
New York

Contents

PART ONE THE NEW WORLD OF SCIENCE

1

1	The New World of Science	3
2	Art and Science	5
3	Printing	17
4	Borderlands of Rational Science	23

PART TWO THE ASTRONOMICAL UNIVERSE

35

5	The Old and New Systems of the World	37
6	The New Astronomical Universe	47
7	The New Tools of Astronomy	65

PART THREE THE EXACT SCIENCES

73

8	The Beginnings of Modern Mathematics	75
9	The Science of Statics	83
10	The Science of Motion	89
11	Newtonian Science	93

PART FOUR
THE EXPERIMENTAL PHYSICAL SCIENCES
103

12	Optics	105
13	The Microscope	111
14	The Experimental Physical Sciences	119
15	Electricity—The New Science of the Eighteenth Century	129
16	The Chemical Revolution	139

PART FIVE
THE EARTH SCIENCES
149

17	Studying the Earth	151
18	New Worlds	161
19	Mapping and Measuring the Earth	167

PART SIX
THE LIFE SCIENCES
173

20	The World of Plants	175
21	The World of Animals	185
22	The Fabric of Man	199
23	Physiology of Animals and Men	215
24	Man, a Primate	229

PART SEVEN
SCIENCE AND SOCIETY
233

25	The Institutionalization of Science: Scientific Academies and Societies, Museums, and Gardens	235
26	Science and Society	253
27	The Encyclopédie of Diderot	267
28	The Belief in Progress and the Limitlessness of Science	273