

LIBERAL PROTECTIONISM

The International Politics of Organized Textile Trade

---

VINOD K. AGGARWAL

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PRESS
Berkeley Los Angeles London

Contents

---

Preface	xi
Abbreviations	xiii
PART I: THE THEORY	1
1. The Growth of Protection and International Regimes	3
The New Protectionism	5
The Importance of Textile and Apparel Trade	8
Organization of the Study	14
2. The Process of International Regime Transformation	16
The Objective: International Regimes	16
An International System Theory of Regime Transformation	27
The Role of Domestic Structure and Decision Makers in Regime Transformation	33
The Methodology: Comparative Case Studies and Process-Tracing	38
PART II: THE CYCLE OF REGIME TRANSFORMATION	41
3. Nonexistence: The Pre-Regime Period, 1950-1959	43
The Early Period, 1950-1954	44
The American Bilateral Agreements, 1955-1959: Success with Japan	45

The U.K. Agreement with Exporting Countries	54
U.S. Attempts to Restrain Hong Kong Exports	63
The European Arrangements	73
Summary	74
4. Creation: The Short-Term and Long-Term Arrangements, 1960-1962	77
Policy Choices	78
The Negotiations	83
Behavior of Countries and Transactions	90
Conclusion	94
5. Maintenance: The Renewal of the LTA and the Development of the MFA, 1963-1974	95
The United States Tries to Secure an International Wool Agreement	96
The Renewal of the LTA	98
Expansion of the LTA, The First Effort: 1969-1971	112
The Second Effort: The Development of the MFA, 1973	123
Conclusion	140
6. Destruction: The Renewal of the Multi-Fiber Arrangement, 1977 and 1981	143
The Renewal of the MFA, 1977	143
The Second Renewal of the MFA, 1981	166
Conclusion	181
PART III: WEAVING A NEW REGIME?	183
7. Conclusion	185
Collaboration in Textile Trade	185
Implications for Theory	187
Prospects for Textile Trade	194
The Cycle Repeats?	195
CHRONOLOGY OF EVENTS	203
APPENDIXES	205

Contents	ix
NOTES	255
GLOSSARY	279
REFERENCES	283
INDEX	293