

The Program Era

POSTWAR FICTION

AND THE RISE OF CREATIVE WRITING

Mark McGurl

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, Massachusetts

London, England

2009

CONTENTS

Preface ix

Introduction: Halls of Mirror 1

PART ONE: “Write What You Know”/“Show Don’t Tell” (1890–1960)

- 1 Autobarolatry: Modernist Fiction, Progressive Education,
“Creative Writing” 77
- 2 Understanding Iowa: The Religion of Institutionalization 127

PART TWO: “Find Your Voice” (1960–1975)

- 3 The Social Construction of Unreality: Creative Writing
in the Open System 183
- 4 Our Phonocentrism: Finding the Voice of the (Minority)
Storyteller 227

PART THREE: Creative Writing at Large (1975–2008)

- 5 The Hidden Injuries of Craft: Mass Higher Education and Lower-Middle-Class Modernism 273
- 6 Art and Alma Mater: The Family, the Nation, and the Primal Scene of Instruction 321
- 7 Miniature America; or, The Program in Transplanetary
Perspective 361

Afterword: Systematic Excellence 399

Notes 411

Index 456