

SYSTEMS AND MEANING

Consulting in Organizations

Gitte Haslebo & Kit Sanne Nielsen

edited by Gitte Haslebo

translated by
Dorte Herholdt Silver

Systemic Thinking and Practice Series
Work with Organizations

Series Editors
David Campbell & Ros Draper

KARNAC BOOKS

CONTENTS

ABOUT THE AUTHORS	ix
EDITORS' FOREWORD	xi
PREFACE	xiii
1 Organizational consultation in a systemic perspective
Gitte Haslebo	1
When consultation is considered	3
2 Organizational consultation and learning
Gitte Haslebo	17
Learning in organizations	17
Stages in the collective learning process	22
Consultation as the staging of collective learning processes	29
Methodological considerations and the collective learning process	35

3	"Assess our manager and expose his shortcomings": a consultation in a private company
	Kit Sanne Nielsen	39
	Case study	40
	A systemic model of learning	61
	The consultant's final reflections	64
	Putting systemic concepts into practice	65
4	"Free us from the past!": a consultation in a municipality
	Gitte Haslebo	73
	Case study	74
	Turning systemic ideas into practice	94
5	Key concepts in systemic thinking
	Gitte Haslebo & Kit Sanne Nielsen	101
	5.1 First- and second-order cybernetics	101
	5.2 The linear and the circular line of thinking	104
	5.3 From neutrality to irreverence	110
	5.4 The professional domains	115
	5.5 Hypothesizing	123
	5.6 Interventions	128
6	The consultant's cognitive processes in practice: When two consultants work together
	Kit Sanne Nielsen	139
	How I learned to be an organizational consultant	139
	Cooperating with other consultants: Similarities and discrepancies	141
	Cooperating with internal consultants	145
	The consultant's own learning: the qualitative leap	151

7	The consultant's cognitive processes in practice: receiving supervision
	Gitte Haslebo	157
	How I learned to be an organizational consultant	157
	Supervision	161
	Receiving supervision and the individual learning spiral	169
8	Epilogue
	Gitte Haslebo & Kit Sanne Nielsen	171
	Consultation work requires personal development	171
	Consultation work is a learning process in itself	173
	The end of the information society?	173
	Future leaders have to be experts at learning processes	175
	REFERENCES AND BIBLIOGRAPHY	177
	INDEX	183