

The Age of Manufactures
Industry, Innovation and Work in Britain
1700-1820

MAXINE BERG

Barnes & Noble Books
Totowa, New Jersey

Contents

Preface	11
Acknowledgements	13
Introduction	15
Part One	Manufacture and the Economy
1	Industries 23
	Textiles 29
	Mining and metals 35
	Other industries 38
	Changes in organization 40
	The economic impact of technical change 43
2	Political Economy and the Growth of Manufacture 48
	Early eighteenth-century commentary 49
	The middle years 54
	Adam Smith 57
	The end of the century: critiques of the division of labour 64
3	Models of Manufacture: Primitive Accumulation or Proto-industrialization? 69
	Primitive accumulation and manufacture 70
	Proto-industrialization: the theory and its problems 77
	Manufacture and proto-industry: applications? 83
	Other alternatives: artisans, cooperatives and centralized manufacture 86
	Diversity and change 90
	Social values 91

4 Agricultural Origins of Industry	92
Agriculture's subordination	92
Contributions to industry	94
Agrarian structures and the rise of industry	102
5 Industrial Decline	108
Reasons for decline	112
The old cloth regions	113
Comparative advantage	116
Institutional factors	118
New rural industries for old?	122
Other regions	125
Cyclical factors	127
6 Domestic Manufacture and Women's Work	129
Domestic system and family economy	129
Women and the labour force	134
Female technologies and women's skills	139
Family, status and training	153
7 Custom and Community in Domestic Manufacture and the Trades	159
Community ties and outworkers	160
Women's networks and the organization of production	164
Plebeian community versus the market?	167
Women and the organization of consumption	169
Luxury consumption and work discipline	172
New directions	174

Part Two Paths to the Industrial Revolution

The Economic History of Technological Diffusion	179
Habakkuk and his critics	181
Institutional factors	187
The labour process and the Marxist alternative	189
Marxist dilemmas	194

9	The Textile Industries: Organizing Work	198
	Industrial origins	199
	Early work organization in textile manufacture	207
	New work organization and the road to the factory system	220
	Factories and alternatives	228
10	The Textile Industries: Technologies	234
	Spinning	235
	Weaving	246
	Finishing techniques	249
	The impact of textile machinery	252
	New techniques, skills, and the division of labour	254
	Resistance to new technology	260
11	The Metal and Hardware Trades	264
	Metals and manufacture	266
	Artisan independence and skill	278
12	The Birmingham Toy Trades	287
	The organization of the toy trades	289
	Technology	295
	Apprenticeship and labour	305
	Conclusion	315
	Notes	321
	Bibliography	345
	Index	365