

Economics, Evolution and the State

The Governance of Complexity

Edited by

Kurt Dopfer

Professor of Economics, University of St Gallen, Switzerland

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Introduction Kurt Dopfer	1
PART I ECONOMIC EVOLUTION AS OPEN PROCESS
1 Heterogeneity and evolutionary change – concepts and measurement Uwe Cantner and Horst Hanusch	13
2 Is the notion of progress compatible with an evolutionary view of the economy? C. Christian von Weizsäcker	43
3 Reconciling evolutionary economics with liberalism Gerhard Wegner	58
4 Historical economics and evolutionary economic policy – Coasean perspectives Matthias Klaes	78
PART II SELF-ORGANISATION AND NETWORKS
5 The concept of network organisation – biotechnology-based industries as exemplar Andreas Pyka and P. Paolo Saviotti	99
6 Sociodynamics – an integrated approach to modelling in the social sciences Wolfgang Weidlich	120
7 The concept of space in trade – some evolutionary basics Carsten Herrmann-Pillath	140
8 Economic policy – a process of communication Lambert T. Koch	168
9 Why endogeneity is not enough to explain technological change – a critique of Paul Romer Malcolm H. Dunn	190

PART III THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF COMPLEXITY

10	Innovation and the learning policy maker – an evolutionary approach based on historical experience	215
	Joachim Schwerin and Claudia Werker
11	The national German innovation system – its development in different governmental and territorial structures	239
	Hariolf Grupp, Iciar Dominguez Lacasa and Monika Friedrich-Nishio
12	Emergence and diffusion of disastrous innovations – a case study	274
	Reiner Peter Hellbrück
13	Applying evolutionary economics to public policy – the example of competitive federalism in the EU	296
	Wolfgang Kerber
14	Can evolutionary economics make a billion $ difference for 60 per cent of the world's poor in Asia?	325
	Hans-Peter Brunner
	Index	351