

Disinflation in Transition, 1993-97

Carlo Cottarelli and Peter Doyle

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

Washington DC

1999

Contents

	Page
Preface	v
I Introduction	1
II Inflation Developments	2
III Disinflation, Output, and the Current Account Balance	5
Disinflation and Output Growth	5
Disinflation and the External Current Account	8
IV Inflation Inertia, Credibility, and Disinflation	9
The Context for Disinflation	9
Policy Response: Fiscal Policy	12
Policy Response: Credibility-Enhancing Devices	20
Policy Response: Sequencing and Speed	27
V Persistent Moderate Inflation	30
VI Conclusions	33
Appendices
I. Relation Between Inflation and Output in Transition Revisited	35
II. Financial Stability	40
Boxes
IV 1. Relative Prices and Inflation: A Look Ahead	12
2. Inflation and Fiscal Deficits: Summary of Econometric Results	19
3. Disinflation Reversals in 1993–97: Albania, Bulgaria, and Romania	28
Tables
II 1. Twelve-Month Inflation Rates in Transition Economies	2
2. Disinflation Thresholds	3
IV 3. Administered Price Changes	13
4. Development of Government Securities Markets	14
5. Overall and Primary General Government Balances, and Central Bank Financing to the Government	15
6. Fiscal and Inflation Developments	17