

Conceiving the City: London, Literature, and Art 1870-1914

NICHOLAS FREEMAN

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

|                                                                        |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| List of Illustrations                                           | xi         |
| Introduction: The Problem of London                             | 1   |
| Accumulating Impressions                                               | 1          |
| The City of the World                                                  | 4          |
| Passing the Baton                                                      | 19         |
| Being Realistic                                                        | 26         |
| 1. 'Inclusion and Confusion': Empiricist London                 | 35  |
| Fact versus Fiction                                                    | 36         |
| Dealing with Dickens (and Zola)                                        | 43         |
| 'A restricted number of natural facts': London under theMicroscope | 47         |
| Slumming It                                                            | 54         |
| Telling Tales                                                          | 65         |
| 'O wot 'orrid langwidge': Talking to the Cockneys                      | 70         |
| The Exact Knowledge of Sherlock Holmes                                 | 80         |
| Stories without Ends                                                   | 86         |
| 2. Shadows and Fog: Impressionist London                        | 89  |
| 'The almost awful clarity of Henry James'                              | 89         |
| Paternal Prompting                                                     | 97         |
| Floating like a Butterfly: Whistler                                    | 103        |
| Impressionist Cityscapes                                               | 112        |
| Imitating Whistler                                                     | 118        |
| Imitating Monet                                                        | 129        |
| 'Fleeting and transitory things': Speeding London                      | 134        |
| Towards the Within                                                     | 143        |
| 3. 'That untravell'd world': Symbolist London                   | 147 |
| Doors in the Wall                                                      | 147        |
| Mysteries and Initiations                                              | 149        |
| Fashioning the Symbol                                                  | 170        |
| Realist Veils                                                          | 181        |

|                                              |     |
|----------------------------------------------|-----|
| Phantasmagoria: The Street beyond the Street | 196 |
| An Immense Darkness                          | 201 |
| Afterword                             | 206 |
| Bibliography                          | 210 |
| Index                                 | 231 |