

JOHANN GOTTLIEB FICHTE

Attempt at a Critique of All Revelation

EDITED BY
ALLEN WOOD

Indiana University, Bloomington

TRANSLATED BY
GARRETT GREEN
Connecticut College

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Introduction	page vii
Chronology	xxix
Further reading	xxxii
Note on the text and translation	xxxiii
Attempt at a Critique of All Revelation	i
Dedication	i
Preface to the first edition	3
Preface to the second edition	5
§1 Introduction	7
§2 Theory of the will in preparation for a deduction of religion in general	9
§3 Deduction of religion in general	29
§4 Division of religion in general into natural and revealed	45
§5 Formal discussion of the concept of revelation in preparation for a material discussion of it	51
§6 Material discussion of the concept of revelation in preparation for a deduction of it	60
§7 Deduction of the concept of revelation from a priori principles of pure reason	64

Contents

§8 The possibility of the empirical datum presupposed in the concept of revelation	69
§9 The physical possibility of a revelation	87
§10 Criteria of the divinity of a revelation according to its form	92
§11 Criteria of the divinity of a revelation with regard to its possible content (materice revelationis)	96
^ 12 Criteria of the divinity of a revelation with regard to the possible presentation of this content	108
§13 Systematic order of these criteria	115
§14 The possibility of receiving a given appearance as divine revelation	118
515 General overview of this critique	131
Concluding remark	134
Appendix: passages omitted in the second edition	142
Glossary	150
Index	153