

Essays on Social Conflict and Reform

Anders Bornefalk

Stockholm Institute of Transition Economics and East European Economies
STOCKHOLM SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS

STOCKHOLM SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS
EFI, THE ECONOMIC RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction and Summary	1
Essay 1:
Social Conflict with Passive Groups
1. Introduction	1
2. The Model	4
2.1 Production and Distribution	4
2.2 Cooperation	6
3. The Cooperative Case	7
4. The Non-cooperative Case	10
5. Exit, Voice, or Loyalty?	16
6. Concluding Discussion	18
Appendix	20
References	22
Essay 2:
Democratization, Rent Seeking, and Economic Transition
1. Introduction	1
2. The Model	5
3. A Transition Interpretation	9
3.1 The Vulnerability of Unorganized Groups	9
3.2 The Possibility of Cooperation	13
4. Economic Performance and Reform	14
4.1 The Cooperative Case	15
4.2 The Non-cooperative Case	18
5. Political Reform	23
5.1 The Democratic Culture	23
5.2 The Cooperative Case	24
5.3 The Non-cooperative Case	25
6. Applications	28
6.1 Poland and Russia Compared	28
6.2 Rapid or Gradual Democratization?	30
7. Concluding Remarks	32
Appendix	34
References	37

Essay 3:

Constitutional Constraints and Redistributive Activities

1. Introduction	2
2. The Model	5
2.1 Production and Distribution	5
2.2 Objectives of the Constitutional Assembly	7
3. Constitutions and Influence Activities	9
3.1 The Cooperative Case	10
3.2 The Non-Cooperative Case	16
4. Constitutional Reform	17
4.1 The Self-Seeking Constitutional Assembly	17
4.2 The Biased Constitutional Assembly	19
5. Concluding Remarks	28
Appendix I	29
References	31

Essay 4:

The Break-up of the Ruble Zone: Undertaking Monetary Reform while Building Democratic Institutions

1. Introduction	2
2. Trade and Payments in the Former Soviet Union	7
2.1 The Break-down of the Soviet Payments System	7
2.2 Options for a Market-Based Payments System	9
2.3 Russia's Choice	14
2.4 The Ruble Rally	16
2.5 Inertia in Trade Relations	19
3. The Monetary Mechanism of the Ruble Zone	22
3.1 Previous Analyses	22
3.2 Decisive Features of Membership	24
3.3 A Summary of Pros and Cons of Membership	29
4. Strategic Interaction in the Ruble Zone	31
4.1 The Unrestricted Ruble Zone	31
4.2 The Restricted Ruble Zone	3	8
5. Policies of Member Countries	47
5.1 Renegotiation of Credit Limits	47
5.2 Introduction of Currency Boards	47
5.3 Emergence of Hyperinflation	49
5.4 Concluding Remarks	51
6. The Political Economy of Russia's Monetary Reform	52
6.1 Strength and Interests of State Enterprise Managers	52
6.2 The Struggle over Russian Monetary Reform	55

6.3 Radical versus Gradual Dissolution	60
6.4 The Relative Success of the Break-up	63
7. Conclusions	66
Appendix	68
References	69