

CHINA: AIR
LAND, AND WATER

environmental priorities for a new millennium

Foreword	xi
Acknowledgments	xn
Executive Summary	xiv
1. Economic Growth and the Environment	i
Changing Industrial Structure	2
Urbanization and the Environment	5
Agriculture, Poverty, and Natural Resources Management	9
Lessons for the New Millennium	11
2. Management of Land Resources	17
The State of Land Degradation	17
Management Issues in the Main Land Systems	19
Conclusions and Recommendations	34
3 Water Resources Management and Water Pollution Trends	47
Water Quality Trends	47
Water Resources Availability, Consumption, and Demand	51
Trends in Pollutant Emissions	54
Conclusions and Recommendations	62
4. Air Pollution	77
Main Pollutants, Emission Sources, and Emission Trends	77
Ambient Air Quality Trends	79
Indoor Air Pollution	81
Acid Deposition	83
Global Environmental Concerns	84
Key Air Pollution Issues, Policy Implications, and Recommended Actions	85

5	Environmental Management	.99
	Developments in Environmental Administration	99
	Approaches to Environmental Management	102
	National Priority Programs	109
	New Challenges	112
	Future Management Needs and Priorities	115
6	Portfolio Review	.123
	The Portfolio	123
	Environmental Dimensions of the Portfolio	124
	Strategic Directions in the Assistance Program	127
	Opportunities for the Bank Under the 10th FTP	127
7.	An Environmental Strategy for the New Millennium.	.135
	The Challenge	135
	A Strategy for the New Millennium	135
	The Role of Donors	141
	 Bibliography.	 .145