

 Routledge

U ^ Taylor & Francis Group
NEW YORK AND LONDON

香港公開大學出版社
OPEN UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG PRESS

C

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS	xii
LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS	xiv
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	xvi
1 Stability, development and unity in contemporary China	1
CZESLAW TUBILEWICZ
Introduction	2
Stability in China prior to the reform era	2
Sources of instability in contemporary China	4
Weaknesses of the political system	4
Economic inequalities •	5
Unrest among ethnic minorities	7
Sustainable development	8
Environmental sustainability	9
Population growth and food security	10
China's territorial unity	11
Reunification with Taiwan	12
Centrifugal forces in contemporary China	13
Secessionist movements in ethnic areas	14
The peril of regional disintegration	15
Development riddled with challenges	16
References	17
2 Critical developments in Chinese politics	19
NG KA PO
Introduction	20
Ideology	21

CONTENTS

Marxism-Leninism in China	21
Jiang Zemin's Important Thought of the Three Represents	23
Building a 'socialist harmonious society'	24
Government reform	25
The Party's control of government	25
Restructuring the relationship between government and the Party	26
The state and the economy	27
The state and society	27
Leadership succession	29
The transfer of power	29
Leadership succession in CCP history	29
The role of the army in CCP leadership succession	31
Jiang's succession strategies	32
Grassroots-level elections: an experiment with pluralism	34
Political participation in China	34
Villager committees: the origin of grassroots democracy	35
Challenges to grassroots democracy in China	36
Significance of grassroots democracy	37
The information revolution and political control	37
Social surveillance and ideological control	38
The growth of information flow	38
The state's responses to the information revolution	40
To what extent does the information revolution challenge the state?	43
Conclusion	44
References	44
Further reading	47
Privatisation	49
BENNIS SO WAI YIP
Introduction	50
What is privatisation?	50
The narrow definition: privatisation from above	50
The broad definition: privatisation from below	50
An 'unintended' privatisation in China	51
'Crossing the river by groping for stones'	52
Rural privatisation	52
Urban privatisation	54
Legitimisation of the private economy	55
Post-1992 acceleration	56

CONTENTS

From the Fifteenth National Party Congress to the present	59
Political economy of privatisation in China	60
Privatisation from below	60
Privatisation from above	66
Consequences of privatisation in China	68
Fiscal consequences	68
Decline of the state's control over society	69
The rise of an entrepreneurial class and democratisation	70
The rise of unemployment	71
Privatisation of welfare and social service systems	72
Conclusion	73
Glossary: key terms related to privatisation in China	74
References	76
4 Uneven economic development	79
WANG SHAOGUANG
Introduction	80
A historical overview of regional economic-development	82
Regional development during the Mao years	82
Changes in regional disparities since 1978	84
The economic causes of uneven regional development	92
Proximate sources of output growth	92
Sources of capital accumulation	94
The political causes of uneven regional development	97
Government intervention: revenue collection vs egalitarianism	98
Mao's China (1949-76)	99
Policy changes and regional inequality in the reform period	100
Policy shifts in the 1990s	103
Declining central extractive capacity	105
Options for addressing regional disparity	107
Conclusion	108
References	110
Further reading	111
5 China's environmental problems	113
RICHARD LOUIS EDMONDS
Introduction	114
Historical background to environmental problems in China	115

CONTENTS

Environmental problems in early Chinese history	115
Environmental problems and policy from 1949 to 1978	115
What causes China's environmental problems?	117
Population pressure	117
Shortage of natural resources	119
Government planning, policy and management	121
How serious is pollution, in China?	121
Water pollution	121
Solid wastes	123
Air pollution	125
Noise pollution	128
Government responses to China's environmental problems	129
How serious is the resource degradation found in China?	129
Deforestation	129
Soil erosion	131
Aridity	132
How is nature conservation managed in China?	135
China's flora and wildlife	136
Conservation during the Mao years	136
The establishment of nature reserves	137
Government responses to endangered wildlife	138
What are the effects of environmental degradation?	138
Worsening conditions, for the urban poor	139
Increasing political commitment to environmental issues	139
Environmental diplomacy	139
Conclusion	140
References	141
Further reading	141
Population change and food security in China	143
ROBERT FAIRBANKS ASH
Introduction	144
Demographic trends in China since 1949	145
Population policies in China	149
• Food production in China	151
The Mao era	152
The reform era	155
From food production to food consumption: feeding the Chinese population	158

CONTENTS

China's food security in the twenty-first century	161
Conclusion	164
References	165
Ethnic minorities	1 67
COLIN MACKERRAS
Introduction	168
Policies on minorities 1949-90	168
Mao's policies on ethnic minorities	1 69
Ethnic minorities under Deng Xiaoping	1 70
What is a 'minority nationality'?	171
Ethnic consciousness	1 74
Recent policy towards ethnic minorities	1 74
Economic development and the suppression of separatism	1 75
Autonomy and affirmative action	1 75
Minority economies	1 77
Preferential policies	1 78
Inequalities	179
Poverty	180
Population issues	181
Han immigration	182
Religion	183
Islam	183
Buddhism	183
Religion and separatism	184
The question of national unity	1 85
Challenges to national unity	185
Tibet	185
Xinjiang	186
Ethnic minorities and international relations	188
Tibet and the USA	1 88
Xinjiang, Russia and the USA	189
Conclusion	190
References	191
Further reading	1 92

CONTENTS

8 Critical social issues	193
COLIN MACKERRAS
Introduction	194
Family and women	195
Family in traditional China	195
Women in traditional China	196
The family during the Republican period	197
The PRC and family	198
Changing household patterns	199
Marriage	199
Divorce	200
Women's role and status	201
The education system	203
Education in imperial China	203
Education in the Republican period	204
Education under Mao Zedong	204
Changes in education during the reform period	205
Challenges ahead	212
The health system	212
The health system under Mao	213
Reform and the health system	213
Disease crises and health care management	215
Economic inequality in Chinese society	218
Land reform, collectivisation, and the elimination of private enterprise	218
Economic inequalities during the reform period	220
The elimination of absolute poverty	222
Conclusion	223
References	224
9 Cross-Strait relations and China's reunification prospects	227
CZESLAW TUBILEWICZ
Introduction	228
China and Taiwan before 1949	229
Taiwan as a Japanese colony	229
The 28 February Uprising	230
Taiwan during the Civil and Korean wars	231
Taiwan Strait Crises	232
The first crisis: 1954-5	232

CONTENTS

The second crisis: 1958	233
The 'one China' question	233
Sino-Taiwanese dialogue	234
Beijing's peace overtures	234
Dialogue formalised	235
Renewed tensions	237
Flexible diplomacy	237
The missile crisis	238
Taiwan's democratisation	241
The lifting of martial law	241
Evolution of Taiwanese democracy	242
The rise of Taiwanese identity	243
The DPP era in cross-Strait relations	244
Chen Shui-bian's first term	244
2004 presidential elections	246
China's push and pull	247
Cross-Strait economic relations	249
The US factor	252
Future scenarios	253
The status quo	253
War	254
One country, two systems	255
Federacy	255
Confederation	255
Conclusion	256
Note	257
References	257
INDEX	263