

DOCUMENTS OF LIFE

An Invitation to a Critical Humanism

KEN PLUMMER

SAGE Publications

London • Thousand Oaks • New Delhi

Contents

List of Tables, Figures and Boxes	viii
Preface to the Fully Revised and Expanded Edition of Documents of Life	ix
1 For a Humanistic Way in Social Science	1
Reclaiming the humanities for the 'human sciences'	7
Symbolic interactionism and the rise of a late or post modern sensibility	12
An opening conclusion: a critical humanistic social science	14
Guide to further reading	15
2 Sighting a Diversity of Life Stories: From Resource to Topic	17
The varieties of life stories	18
The life story as resource and as topic	36
A temporary conclusion . . .	45
Guide to further reading	46
3 Accessories to a Life Story: From Written Diaries to Video Diaries	48
Diaries	48
Letters	52
'Vox populi' and guerrilla journalism	55
'The literature of fact': faction, the new journalism, and the new auto/biography	56
Possessions and 'biographical objects'	57
Life stories and the 'other senses': the case of the world of the visual	58
Conclusion	73
Guide to further reading	74

4	The Auto/Biographical Society	78
	Elements for a genealogy of life stories: the rise of the personal tale	79
	Puzzling the auto/biography	86
	Making new voices: collective stories 'up from below'	90
	Pulp confessionals, cyberdocuments and hi-tech lives	96
	The dark side of life stories	100
	In conclusion	101
	Guide to further reading	101
5	'Chicago' and the Making of a Sociological Method	103
	Enter a Polish peasant. . . and a delinquent boy	104
	The hey-day of the human document	107
	The Chicago voice	113
	A cautionary conclusion: a postmodern sensibility, again	115
	Guide for further reading	116
6	Getting and Doing Life Stories	118
	Thinking ahead: five kinds of research questions and seven phases of research!	120
	Posing some problems – getting some questions	122
	Planning the research	132
	Doing the research: getting a life/performing interviews	139
	Guide to further reading	146
7	Thinking about Life History 'Data'	149
	Managing the data: from 'fieldnotes' to 'filenotes'	149
	Analysing and 'theorizing' the stories	152
	Reading the story: logic and theory in life story work	159
	Conclusion: the myth and reality of research	166
	Guide to further reading	166
8	Writing Life Stories	168
	The problem of writing	168
	Writing strategies, writing cultures, writing lives	171
	In search of an audience	174
	Author intrusion, editing and interpretation	176
	A question of self and voice: authority and subject in a text	180
	An interim conclusion	183
	Guide to further reading	183

9 Life Stories and the Narrative Turn	185
Some basic elements of narrative	186
The narratives of 'life patterns'	191
Moving beyond the classic narrative texts of life	195
Conclusion: narrativity and the problem of narrative	201
Guide to further reading	202
10 The Moral and Human Face of Life Stories: Reflexivity, Power and Ethics	204
Entering personal worlds: towards self-reflexivity in research	206
Ethics and morality in research	215
Positioning ethics	226
In conclusion: narratives of research ethics and communities of research stories	227
Guide to further reading	230
11 Truth, Value and Memory in Life Stories	232
The problem of memory	233
Practices of truth in life story telling	238
The pragmatics of life stories: putting the stories to good use	242
In conclusion: the moral call of stories	250
Guide to further reading	253
12 Epilogue: Critical Humanism in a Post-modern World	255
The anti-humanist project	257
Weakening the critique	259
A human conception: for a pragmatic critical humanism	261
Guide to further reading	264
Appendix
New Technologies/New Sources/New Archiving in Life Story Work	265
Using new technologies	265
A note on archives and life story work	266
Other web site resources	269
Bibliography	270
Key Names and Titles Index	299
Subject Index	303