

Customer-gearred competition

- a socio-Austrian explanation of Tertius Gaudens -

Anders Liljenberg

STOCKHOLM SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS
EFI, THE ECONOMIC RESEARCH INSTITUTE

REGISTER

PREFACE..... i

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS..... iii

THANKS!..... iv

REGISTER..... vi

LIST OF FIGURES..... viii

LIST OF TABLES..... ix

PROLOGUE..... xii

Block 1, Opening

I. INTRODUCTION

i. Some initial remarks about competition..... 3

ii. The subject matter of this essay..... 6

iii. Are instrumental and analytical competition mutually exclusive?..... 8

iv. A few kernel ideas of neoclassical competition..... 10

v. A few accounts of business studies competition..... 14

vi. Why this effort is different..... 17

vii. Why bother right now, and in this manner?..... 22'

II. AREA AND OBJECTIVE OF RESEARCH

i. The research problem..... 27

ii. The dissertation purpose..... 31

iii. The thesis assumptions..... 33

iv. The research goal..... 35

v. To understand, on types of scientific inquiry..... 40

vi. Plan of the argument..... 45

Block 2, Competition

III. SCHOOLS OF COMPETITION

i. Classical sociology..... 51

ii. The formal-analytical network approach..... 66

iii. The informal-governance network approach..... 81

iv. Competition in neoclassical economics as 'perfect'..... 95

v. Competition in neoclassical economics as 'imperfect'..... 105

vi. Austrian economics..... 124

vii. The schools of competition summarized..... 153

IV. TERTIUS GAUDENS, COMPETITION AS A MECHANISM

i. The explanandum of the model, originating in nine dichotomies of competition..... 163'

ii. The nature of the model, Tertius Gaudens..... 175

iii. The principles guiding the formulation of explanans..... 190

iv. The first explanans, customer alertness..... 194

v. The second explanans, social capital..... 210

vi. The erected model..... 231

Block 3, Analysis

V. METHODOLOGY

i. The reason behind this chapter..... 237

ii. On theory in general..... 239

| | |
|---|-----|
| iii. On conceptual development.: | 240 |
| iv. Three crucial methodological ingredients | 247 |
| v. To argue pro aut cohird . | 257 |
| vi. Two alternatives for the study of social mechanisms | 263 |

VI. THE PRO AUT CONTRA DICERE

| | |
|---|-----|
| i. The specific model agency. | 267 |
| ii. The articulation of F1, on customer alertness and competition | 270 |
| iii. The articulation of F2, on social capital and competition | 272 |
| iv. The jointagency of F1 and F2. | 273 |
| v. The pro aut contra dicere of the socio-Austrian Tertius Gaudens | 276 |
| vi. The mutual dependence of F1 and F2 | 300 |
| vii. Relationship status impact | 303 |
| viii. Analytical summary. | 310 |
| ix. Two alternative issue-expressions. | 312 |
| x. Some further support for the main argument pursued. | 318 |

VII. SOME ASPECTS OF SWEDISH ANTITRUST LAW

| | |
|---|-----|
| i. An introductory case, the Swedish market for mobile telecommunication services. | 323 |
| ii. The why and how of this chapter. | 326 |
| iii. Simmel's perspective on competition law. | 328 |
| iv. The roots of antitrust legislation | 330 |
| v. Fundamental contents of Swedish antitrust legislation based on European Community law. | 333 |
| vi. Tertius Gaudens and 'abuse of dominant position*. | 337 |
| vii. Summary and policy implications. | 364 |

Block 4, Completion

VIII. AUSTRIANS AND SOCIOLOGISTS: FRIENDS OR FOES?

| | |
|---|-----|
| i. On economics and sociology in the social sciences. | 373 |
| ii. The interlinkage of economic sociology and Austrian economics. | 376 |
| iii. On economic sociology. | 379 |
| iv. On Austrian economics. | 386 |
| v. Methodological individualism, the whole of the parts. | 392 |
| vi. Rationality, the reason forreason | 413 |
| vii. Subjectivism, the meaning of meaning | 434 |
| viii. Joint social individualism, human purposefulness, and dynamic intersubjectivism | 461 |
| ix. A socio-Austrian reconciliation in the shadow of Weber. | 464 |

IX. CLOSING IN AND OPENING UP

| | |
|---|-----|
| i. What this essay is all about. | 469 |
| ii. Is knowledge in general furthered in accordance with the promises made? | 473 |
| iii. On the eventual refinement of theory. | 476 |
| iv. 'Managerial implications' discerned from a businessman's perspective. | 477 |
| v. Potential shortcomings. | 480 |
| vi. The-understanding of the explanandum, customer-gear competition. | 484 |
| vii. Can the explanans assist in explaining phenomena other than competition? | 491 |
| viii. An agenda for reaching out further. | 493 |

| | |
|----------|-----|
| EPILOGUE | 499 |
|----------|-----|

| | |
|--------------|-----|
| BIBLIOGRAPHY | 501 |
|--------------|-----|

APPENDICES

| | |
|--|-----|
| Appendix A, Instrumental competition within business strategy and marketing | 519 |
| Appendix B, The markets-as-networks perspective | 531 |
| Appendix C, Sociocapitalized embeddedness or embedded social capital? | 537 |
| Appendix D, Implications of amoral familism in a small southern Italian village. | 541 |