

DAVID HELD

---

Models of Democracy

SECOND EDITION

POLITY PRESS

CONTENTS

LIST OF FIGURES AND TABLES	x
PREFACE	xi
INTRODUCTION	1

PART ONE: CLASSIC MODELS

1 CLASSICAL DEMOCRACY: ATHENS	13
Political ideals and aims	15
Institutional features	21
The exclusivity of ancient democracy	23
The critics	28
In sum: model I	33
2 REPUBLICANISM: LIBERTY, SELF-GOVERNMENT AND THE ACTIVE CITIZEN	36
The eclipse and re-emergence of homo politicus	37
The reforging of republicanism	40
Republicanism, elective government and popular sovereignty	46
From civic life to civic glory	50
In sum: model IIa	55
The republic and the general will	55
In sum: model IIb	61
The public and the private	62
3 THE DEVELOPMENT OF LIBERAL DEMOCRACY: FOR AND AGAINST THE STATE	70
Power and sovereignty	75
Citizenship and the constitutional state	78
Separation of powers	82
The problem of factions	89

Accountability and markets	94
In sum: model IIIa	99
Liberty and the development of democracy	100
The dangers of despotic power and an overgrown state	102
Representative government	107
The subordination of women	111
Competing conceptions of the 'ends of government'	115
In sum: model IIIb	116
4 DIRECT DEMOCRACY AND THE END OF POLITICS	121
Class and class conflict	122
History as evolution and the development of capitalism	124
Two theories of the state	129
The end of politics	136
Competing conceptions of Marxism	147
In sum: model IV	152
 PART TWO: TWENTIETH-CENTURY VARIANTS
5 COMPETITIVE ELITISM AND THE TECHNOCRATIC VISION	157
Classes, power and conflict	159
Bureaucracy, parliaments and nation-states	162
Competitive elitist democracy	168
Liberal democracy at the crossroads	174
The last vestige of democracy?	177
Democracy, capitalism and socialism	182
'Classical' v. modern democracy	185
A technocratic vision	191
In sum: model V	197
6 PLURALISM, CORPORATE CAPITALISM AND THE STATE	199
Group politics, governments and power	201
Politics, consensus and the distribution of power	208
Democracy, corporate capitalism and the state	214
In sum: model VI	217
Accumulation, legitimation and the restricted sphere of the political	218
The changing form of representative institutions	226
7 FROM POST-WAR STABILITY TO POLITICAL CRISIS:
THE POLARIZATION OF POLITICAL IDEALS	233
A legitimate democratic order or a repressive regime?	237
Overloaded state or legitimation crisis?	240
Crisis theories: an assessment	248

Law, liberty and democracy	253
In sum: model VII	261
Participation, liberty and democracy	263
In sum: model VIII	271
8 DEMOCRACY AFTER THE UPHEAVALS IN SOVIET COMMUNISM	274
The historical backdrop	275
The triumph of economic and political liberalism?	278
The renewed necessity of Marxism and democracy from 'below'?	284
 PART THREE: WHAT SHOULD DEMOCRACY MEAN TODAY?
9 DEMOCRATIC AUTONOMY	295
The appeal of democracy	297
The principle of autonomy	299
Enacting the principle	305
The heritage of classic and twentieth-century democratic theory	310
Democracy: a double-sided process	316
Democratic autonomy: compatibilities and incompatibilities	323
In sum: model IXa	324
 10 DEMOCRACY, THE NATION-STATE AND THE GLOBAL SYSTEM	 335
Democratic legitimacy and borders	337
Regional and global flows: old and new	339
Sovereignty, autonomy and disjunctures	341
Rethinking democracy for a more global age: the cosmopolitan model	353
In sum: model IXb	358
 ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	 361
REFERENCES AND SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY	363
INDEX	380