

From the Ballot to the Blackboard

THE REDISTRIBUTIVE
POLITICAL ECONOMY
OF EDUCATION

BEN W. ANSELL

University of Minnesota

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of Tables		page xi
List of Figures		xiii
Preface		xv
1	THE REDISTRIBUTIVE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF EDUCATION	1
	1.1 Two Puzzles, Two Insights	1
	1.2 The Argument of This Book	5
	1.3 The Theoretical Debate over Education	11
	1.4 Three Stories about Education	16
2	THE EXPANSION OF EDUCATION TO THE MASSES: THEORY AND DATA	2 0
	2.1 Introduction: Two Paths to Education?	20
	2.2 Variation in Education Spending	23
	2.3 A Redistributive Theory of Education Expansion	25
	2.4 A Simple Model of Education Expansion	31
	2.5 The Empirical Analysis of Expansion	45
	2.6 Extensions: Disaggregating Political Regimes and Education	61
	2.7 Conclusion	71
3	THE EXPANSION OF EDUCATION: HISTORICAL EVIDENCE	72
	3.1 Introduction	72
	3.2 The Philippines: Political Volatility, Economic Instability, and Education	75
	3.3 India and Malaysia: Comparing Two Educational Puzzles	83
	3.4 East Asia and Latin America: Rethinking the Development Story	98

3.5	Dual Shocks: Southern Europe Joins the European Union	111
3.6	Conclusions	118
4	THE PARTISAN POLITICS OF EDUCATION	119
4.1	Introduction	119
4.2	A Partisan Model of Education Spending	121
4.3	Voter Preferences over Education	129
4.4	Party Preferences over Education	136
4.5	Deriving Policy Outcomes	143
4.6	Electoral Institutions and Education Policy	150
4.7	Conclusion	163
5	HIGH POLITICS IN HIGHER EDUCATION	164
5.1	Introduction	164
5.2	Modeling the Trilemma in Higher Education	166
5.3	Empirical Analysis of the Trilemma	180
5.4	Historical Analysis of the Trilemma	196
5.5	Higher Education in the U.S. States	208
5.6	Conclusion	217
	Appendix to Chapter 5: Modeling Preferences over Higher Education	218
6	CONCLUSION	223
	Bibliography	231
	Index	245