

TRANSNATIONAL
CIVIL SOCIETY

AN INTRODUCTION

Edited by Srilatha Batliwala
and
L. David Brown .

Kumarian
P R S B B , Inc.

Contents

List of Boxes		vni
List_of Tables and Figures		via
Acknowledgements		ix
Foreword	Arjun Appadurai	xi
Introduction	Why Transnational Civil Society Matters Srilatha Batliwala and, L. David Brown
Part One	Transnationalism and Global Power
Chapter One	The New Globalism Peter Dobkin Hall'	16
Chapter Two	Who Really Rules the World? Marsha J. Tyson Darling	30
Chapter Three	Claiming Global Power: Transnational Civil Society and Global Governance Kumi N'aidoo	51
Chapter Four	The Rise of Civic Transriationaiisirr Sanjeev Khagram and Sarah Alvord	65
Part Two	Movements That Changed the World
Chapter Five	Transnational Pioneers: The International Labor Movement Dan Gallin	84
Chapter Six	Spinning the Green Web: Transnational Environmentalism Wendy E. F Torrance and, Andrew W. Torrance	101
Chapter Seven	Dot-Causes and Protest: Transnational Economic Justice Movements John'D. Clark	124
Chapter Eight	<The Personal Is Global: The Project and Politics of the Transnational Women's Movement Peggy Antrobus and Gita\ Sen	142
Chapter Nine	Bridging Borders for Human Rights Alison Brysk and, Celine Jacquemin	159
Chapter Ten	Waging Peace: Transnational Peace Activism Moloko Mekata	181
Conclusion	Shaping the Global Human Project: The Nature and Impact of Transnational Civil Activism Srilatha Batliiuala and L. David Brown	204
Glossary		228
List of Abbreviations		232
Bibliography		237
Contributing Authors		253
Index		261