

Business and the State in Africa

Economic Policy-Making
in the Neo-Liberal Era

ANTOINETTE HANDLEY

University of Toronto

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of figures	• •	page vi
Acknowledgments		vii
List of abbreviations		x
Introduction: the African business class and development		1
Part one Institutionalizing constructive contestation		27
1 Ethnicity, race, and the development of the South African business class, 1870-1989		29
2 The neo-liberal era in South Africa: negotiating capitalist development		62
3 Business and government in Mauritius: public hostility, private pragmatism		101
Part two Business and the neo-patrimonial state		137
4 The emergence of • neo-patrimonial business in Ghana, 1850-1989		139
5 State-dominant reform: Ghana in the 1990s and 2000s		172
6 Business and government in Zambia: too close for comfort		207
Conclusion: the business of economic policy-making, comparatively speaking		242
Bibliography		264
Index		286