

Hong Kong SAR: Meeting the Challenges of Integration with the Mainland

Edited by Eswar Prasad, with contributions from Jorge Chan-Lau, Dora Iakova,
William Lee, Hong Liang, Ida Liu, Papa N'Diaye, and Tao Wang

C
INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

Washington, DC

2004

Contents

	Page
Preface	vii
I Overview	I
Hong Liang and Eswar Prasad
II Economic Integration Between Hong Kong SAR and Mainland China	3
Tao Wang and Hong Liang
How Much Integration Has Taken Place?	3
Outlook for Further Integration with the Mainland	5
Challenges of Integration	9
III Fiscal Outlook and Policy Options	11
Hong Liang
Medium-Term Fiscal Outlook	11
Revenue Structure	13
Government Expenditures	14
Conclusions	19
Appendix. Assumptions for Medium-Term Projections	20
IV Determinants of, and Prospects for, Property Prices	21
Jorge Chan-Lau
Macroeconomic Implications of Changes in Property Prices	21
Recent Developments in Property Market	22
Fundamental Housing Prices	24
Conclusions	26
V Deflation Dynamics	27
Papa N'Diaye
Framework	27
Results	30
Interpreting Results	32
Conclusions	34
VI Trends in Wage Inequality, 1981–2001	35
Dora Jakova
Evolution of Wage Inequality	36
Accounting for Evolution of Wage Inequality	41
Conclusions	44
VII Financial Market Developments	45
William Lee and Ida Liu
An International Financial Center	45
Hub Linking Mainland with Rest of World	52

References 56

Boxes

2.1. Hong Kong SAR and Shanghai: A Comparative Perspective	7
2.2. "Moving Up the Value Chain": An Example	10
7.1. Findings of Financial Sector Assessment Program	49
7.2. Response of Hong Kong SAR Government to Recommendations of Financial Sector Assessment Program (FSAP)	50

Text Tables

2.1. Survey of Traders on Prospects of Different Shipping Arrangements for China Trade	8
2.2. Hong Kong SAR as a Regional Headquarters for Multinational Companies	9
2.3. Location of Major Operations of Hong Kong SAR Companies in Next Five Years	9
2.4. Projected Manpower Resource Balance in 2005	10
3.1. Operating Account	12
3.2. Revenue Structure	14
3.3. Expenditures per Student, by Level of Education, 1999	17
3.4. Estimated Comprehensive Social Security Assistance (CSSA) Expenditure, by Type of Case, FY 1995–FY 2002	18
4.1. Major Policy Measures in Property Market, 1997–2003	23
4.2. Speculative-Bubble Model of Real Property Prices	24
4.3. Scenarios for Housing-Price Projections	25
5.1. Contributors to Deflation	28
5.2. Some Key Economic Indicators	28
5.3. Forecast Error Variance Decomposition	31
6.1. Summary Statistics for Wage-Analysis Sample, 1981–2001	36
6.2. All Workers: Employment and Earnings, by Industry	37
6.3. Employed Men and Women: Employment and Wages, by Education	38
6.4. Education Attainment and Education Wage Premium, by Industry	39
6.5. Measures of Wage Inequality, 1981–2001	40
6.6. Change in Log Wage Differentials, by Percentile	40
6.7. Measures of Residual Wage Inequality: Percentile Differentials	41
6.8. Returns to Education and Experience Based on Human-Capital Equations	42
6.9. Decomposition of Increase in Share of Skilled Workers	43
7.1. Comparative Standing Among International Financial Centers, 2001	46
7.2. Comparison of International Investment Positions Among Existing and Emerging Regional Financial Centers (RFCs), 2002	47
7.3. Structure of Financial System, 1997–2002	48
7.4. Relative Importance of Different Financing Channels in Selected Asian Economies, 2001	51
7.5. China's Utilized Foreign Direct Investment (FDI), by Sources	52
7.6. Hong Kong SAR H-Shares: Listings and Funds Raised	53
7.7. Banking Relations Between Hong Kong SAR and Mainland China	53
7.8. Volume of Syndicated Loans and Floating-Rate Notes Arranged by Banks in Hong Kong SAR for Use in Mainland China	54