

BRIAN GRIFFITHS
ROBERT A. SIRICO
NORMAN BARRY
FRANK FIELD

The Institute of Economic Affairs

CONTENTS

The Authors	7
Foreword	11
The business corporation as a moral community	17
Brian Griffiths
What is a moral standard in business?	18
Can a corporation function without a moral standard?	20
From where can the business corporation derive its moral standard?	25
How does a moral standard function and how can it be implemented in a pluralistic society?	35
How significant is the corporation in our society because of its adherence to a moral standard?	39
Conclusion	40
The culture of virtue, the culture of the market	41
Robert A. Sirico
Introduction	41
The culture of virtue	42
The culture of virtue and the social order	43
The market promotes peace among men	44
The culture of the market helps us fulfil God's command	48
Problems related to markets	50

Consumerism	52
Advertising	53
Conclusion	54
Ethics, conventions and capitalism	57
Norman Barry
The elements of Anglo-American capitalism	61
The stakeholder temptation	69
Takeovers	72
Conclusion	77
Markets and the provision of a minimum income in retirement	79
Frank Field
The Victorian ideal	79
Damaging ideas	81
Non-market rule OK?	82
The pension proposals	83
Conclusion	87
About the IEA	90