

Holger Dannenberg
Dirk Zupancic

Optimising Customer and Sales Management

Contents

Preface I.....	V
Preface II.....	IX
Foreword.....	XIII
Profile of the authors.....	XV
1. Introduction: Excellence in sales and customer management.....	1
Increasing the strategic significance of sales.....	2
Driver I: Sales is an expensive resource.....	2
Driver 2: Sales has the greatest performance improvement potential.....	3
Driver 3: Sales creates real competitive advantage.....	4
Definition of terms in sales.....	4
The, Excellence in Sales study.....	5
Notes for readers.....	6
2. The top 10 success factors for sales excellence.....	9
Core questions in this chapter.....	9
1: Sales should have a good in-company image.....	10
2: Sales processes should receive systematic support.....	11
3: Sales processes should be clearly defined.....	11

4: Cross-functional sales approaches should be based on suitable structures.....	12
5: Customer planning should be systematic and documented.....	12
6: Salespeople should have a high level-of social competence.....	13
7: Salespeople should be experts in their customers'business.....	14
8: Utilise e-learning's potential for sales.....	15
9: Sales personnel should be real personalities with charisma.....	16
10: Successful sales organisations are supported by a customer relationship management system.....	17
Recommended courses of practical action.....	19
3. Excellence in sales is an issue for the entire company.....	21
Core questions in this chapter.....	21
Sales-oriented alignment of corporate strategy.....	22
The internal image of sales.....	25
Sales is a senior management issue.....	27
Each employee is (also) responsible for sales.....	30
Recommended courses of practical action.....	34
4. The interrelationship of marketing and sales strategies.....	37
Core questions in this chapter.....	37
Marketing strategy as an orientation for sales.....	38
Core task profile: competences as the foundation.....	40
Positioning strategy: the fine art of marketing.....	41
Market segmentation as the foundation of marketing strategy.....	45
Marketing and sales cooperation in strategy development.....	51
Recommended courses of practical action.....	56
5. Development of successful sales strategies.....	59
Core questions in this chapter.....	60
Contents of a sales strategy.....	60
Development of a sales strategy.....	65
Implementation of the sales strategy.....	67
Recommended courses of practical action.....	71

6. Sales strategy information base.....	73
Core questions in this chapter.....	73
Analyse" customers, competitors and the company.....	73
Customer analysis.....	75
Competitor analysis .....	76
Analysis of the company situation.....	79
Information sources and management.....	80
Recommended courses of practical action.....	83
7. Customer segmentation.....	85
Core questions in this chapter.....	85
Goals of customer segmentation.....	85
Customer data as the basis for segmentation.....	88
Recommended courses of practical action.....	93
8. Definition of sales process goals for'customer segments.....	95
Core questions in this chapter.....	95
Relationship between marketing targets and sales process targets.....	96
Basis for the formulation of targets.....	96
Specifying concrete sales process targets.....	97
Recommended courses of practical action.....	100
9. Designing sales processes.....	101
Core questions in this chapter.....	102
Process orientation in sales.....	102
Types of sales-processes.....	105
Structure of customer retention processes.....	112
Customer expansion processes.....	116
Selecting target customers.....	117
Making, contact.....	122
Development of the sales process.....	126
Recommended courses of practical action.....	127
10. Management of sales processes.....	129
Core questions in this chapter.....	129

Resources and capacity planning.....	129
Benchmarking as an optimisation concept.....	132
Optimisation of sales processes.....	134
Optimisation by benchmarking.....	135
Typical optimisation potential in sales processes.....	136
Recommended courses of practical action.....	139
11. Sales organisations.....	141
Core questions in this chapter.....	142
Orienting sales structures by region.....	142
Orienting sales structures by products and services.....	143
Orienting sales structures by sector.....	144
Orienting sales structures by customer segment.....	146
Sales structures for customer acquisition and retention.....	150
Sales structures with cross-functional team sales.....	154
Use of different sales channels.....	157
Use of a single sales channel.....	157
Use of several, parallel sales channels.....	160
Use of a multi-channel system in different phases of the sales process.....	162
Recommended courses of practical action.....	164
12. Steering systems.....	165
Core questions in this chapter.....	165
Control of employee behaviour in sales.....	166
Findings on motivation as the starting point.....	166
Reward systems in sales.....	167
Requirements of professional sales controlling systems.....	169
Management systems for controlling sales.....	177
Targets as a control instalment.....	177
Control via activity.....	179
Requirements of reporting systems.....	180
Customer Relationship Management (CRM).....	184
Professional vocational and advanced training systems.....	186
Recommended courses of practical action.....	194

13. Management in sales.....	195
Core questions in this chapter.....	195
Management style.....	196
Static management style concept.....	196
Dynamic management style concept.....	199
Spans of control.....	202
The manager as coach.....	204
Recommended courses of practical action.....	208
14. Execution of sales work.....	209
Core questions in this chapter.....	209
The differentiated sales model.....	209
Customer planning.....	219
Recommended courses of practical action.....	220
15. Digression: What salespersons can learn from top athletes.....	221
16. Conclusion and outlook.....	225
List of literature.....	227