

Management and Language

The Manager as a Practical Author-

David Holman and Richard Thorpe

SAGE Publications
London • Thousand Oaks • New Delhi

Contents

About the editors	ix
List of contributors	xi
List of figures	xii
Introduction: management and language: the manager as a practical author David J. Holman and Richard Thorpe	1
PART1 Setting the scene	13
1 Managers as practical authors: everyday conversations for action John Shotter and Ann L Cunliffe	15
PART 2 Developing and understanding the story	39
2 Using narrative and telling stories David M. Boje	41
3 Full of characters: identity and talk in practical authoring David J. Holman, Jeff Gold and Richard Thorpe	54
4 Visual media and the construction of meaning Richard Thorpe and Joep Cornelisson	67
PART 3 Developing the author's position	83
5 The leader as a practical narrator: leadership as the art of translating Francois Cooren and Gail T. Fairhurst	85
6 The logic of message design in organisational argument Shirley Willihnganz, Joy L Hart and Charles A. Willard	104
7 Authoring as a collaborative process through communication Stanley Deetz	121
PART 4 Rewriting the script, rescripting the author	139
8 Conversations and the authoring of change Jeffrey D. Ford and Laurie W. Ford	141

9	All in a knot of one anothers' labours: action learning as joint practical authoring Mike Pedler	, 1 5 7
10	A critical conversation between author managers and management authors Dorothy Lander and Craig Prichard	172
	Author index	191
	Subject index	194