

Tourism and Economic Development

European Experiences

Third Edition

Edited by
Allan M. Williams and Gareth Shaw
University of Exeter, UK

JOHN WILEY & SONS

Chichester • New York • Weinheim • Brisbane • Singapore • Toronto

Contents

List of contributors	ix
List of figures	x
List of tables	xii
Preface to the third edition	xvi
1 Introduction: tourism and uneven economic development	1
Allan M. Williams and Gareth Shaw
1.1 Introduction: economic development and tourism	1
1.2 Changing forms of production and consumption	3
1.3 Tourism and uneven development: national perspectives	6
1.4 Tourism and uneven development: local and regional perspectives	11
1.5 A note on data sources	15
2 Western European tourism in perspective	17
Gareth Shaw and Allan M. Williams
2.1 Introduction: the emergence of mass tourism	17
2.2 Tourism in Western Europe	20
2.3 Tourism: economic structures	28
2.4 The economic role of tourism	34
2.5 Tourism: some broader economic considerations	39
3 Spain: from the phenomenon of mass tourism to the search for a more diversified model	43
Manuel Valenzuela
3.1 Mass tourism and the Spanish economy: a positive balance	43
3.2 Intense geographical concentration: a major and traditional feature of Spanish tourism	46
3.3 Tourism and a new territorial model of development	50
3.4 Economic impacts on uneven regional development of tourism specialisation	56
3.5 New directions for Spanish tourism: seeking quality and diversity	61
3.6 Conclusions for the twenty-first century: the challenge of quality and coordination	73

4	Italy: diversified tourism	75
	Russell King and Armando Montanari
4.1	Introduction: diversity and change	75
4.2	Italy's tourism resources	75
4.3	Sources of data on Italian tourism	76
4.4	Supply of accommodation: structure and regional diversity	78
4.5	Tourist flows: sustained but uneven growth	82
4.6	The economic importance of Italian tourism	91
4.7	Conclusion: tourism, planning and the future	99
5	Greece: hesitant policy and uneven tourism development in the 1990s	101
	Lila Leontidou
5.1	Introduction *	101
5.2	Greece in international tourism	102
5.3	Political change and tourism policy	105
5.4	Regions and localities	109
5.5	A note on income and employment	115
5.6	Conclusion	121
6	Portugal: market segmentation and economic development	125
	Jim Lewis and Allan M. Williams
6.1	Introduction: the late emergence of international mass tourism	125
6.2	The making of a mass tourism industry	126
6.3	Regional differentiation in the Portuguese tourism industry	135
6.4	Tourism and the national economy	138
6.5	Tourism and regional development	142
6.6	Tourism and governance in Portugal	146
6.7	Conclusions	149
7	Switzerland: structural change within stability	151
	Andrew Qilg
7.1	An environmentally based and long-established tourism product	151
7.2	The changing structure of the tourism industry since the 1970s	152
7.3	The contribution of tourism to Swiss economic development	156
7.4	Tourism's contribution to regional economic development	158
7.5	The political economy of Swiss tourism: limited responses to a growing sense of crisis	161
7.6	Concluding remarks	172
8	Austria: contrasting tourist seasons and contrasting regions	175
	Friedrich M. Zimmermann
8.1	Austria in an international context	175
8.2	National tourist trends	177
8.3	Regional trends	181
8.4	The economic importance of the tourism industry	186

8.5	The economic organisation of the tourism industry	187
8.6	Impacts on local social structures	190
8.7	Policies for tourism	191
9	The United Kingdom: market trends and policy responses Gareth Shaw, Paul Thornton and Allan M. Williams	199
9.1	Tourism and the UK economy	199
9.2	General trends	200
9.3	Structural changes in the tourism industry	205
9.4	Public policy and governance	213
9.5	Conclusions	219
10	Republic of Ireland: an expanding tourism sector Desmond A. Gillmor	221
10.1	Introduction	221
10.2	Tourist attractions and barriers	221
10.3	Tourism policy: towards increased state interventionism	224
10.4	Trends in tourism: the renewal of growth	227
10.5	Tourism in national development: the role of market segmentation	230
10.6	Tourism in regional development: regional convergence and regional redistribution	234
10.7	Conclusion	240
11	France: tourism comes of age John Tuppen	243
11.1	Introduction: the changing context for tourism	243
11.2	The organisation and management of tourism	245
11.3	Tourist destinations and holidaymaking	249
11.4	Tourism resources, products and locations	255
11.5	The impacts of tourism	263
11.6	Conclusions: continuity and change	267
12	Germany: still a growing international deficit? Peter Schnell	269
12.1	Introduction	269
12.2	National tourism trends before and after unification	269
12.3	The exodus to the sun	275
12.4	Tourism in the Federal Republic of Germany	281
12.5	The impact of tourism and tourism policy	291
12.6	Conclusion: tourism in the unified Germany	299
13	Tourism in The Netherlands: resource development, regional impacts and issues David Pinder	301
13.1	Introduction	301

13.2	Tourism beginnings	302
13.3	A country revalued	302
13.4	Foreign tourism: Amsterdam ascendant	306
13.5	Commodification: towards new tourism experiences	312
13.6	From land dereliction to tourism resources	314
13.7	State policy and resource base spin-offs	316
13.8	Conclusion: tourism in the 1990s—an issue-free industry	317
14	Scandinavia: challenging nature	325
	Tommy Andersson and Morten Huse
14.1	Introduction	325
14.2	Main features of the Scandinavian tourism product	326
14.3	The tourism industry	332
14.4	Tourism and national economic development	334
14.5	Tourism and local economic development	339
14.6	Future trends and challenges	343
15	Central and Eastern Europe: tourism, development and transformation	345
	Derek R. Hall
15.1	Introduction: tourism and the new Europe	345
15.2	The tourism product in Central and Eastern Europe	348
15.3	The evolution of CEE tourism	355
15.4	The regional structure of tourism in CEE	358
15.5	Tourism and economic restructuring	367
15.6	Conclusions: trends and challenges	371
16	Tourism policies in a changing economic environment	375
	Allan M. Williams and Gareth Shaw
16.1	Introduction: government, governance and tourism	375
16.2	The international regulatory framework for tourism	377
16.3	Tourism and the state	380
16.4	Tourism and local economic development	386
16.5	Tourism and sustainability	387
16.6	Tourism and development: an uneasy relationship	390
	Bibliography	393
	Index	421