

The Regulation of Science and Technology

Edited by

Helen Lawton Smith

Reader in Local Economic Development

Centre for Local Economic Development

Coventry Business School

Coventry University

Research Director

Oxfordshire Economic Observatory

School of Geography and the Environment

Oxford University

palgrave

Contents

| | |
|---|------|
| Notes on the Contributors | vii |
| I Introduction | |
| 1. The context for science and technology regulation Helen Lawton Smith | 3 |
| II The Issues | |
| 2. The political economy of public science: a contribution to the regulation of science and technology Paul A. David | 33 |
| 3. Can basic science be valued? ' John Mulvey | 58 |
| 4. What higher educational system will there be to regulate? Sir Douglas Hague | 68 |
| 5. Can managed public science enhance wealth and quality of life? A process industries view Richard C. Darton , ' | 85 j |
| III The International Context | |
| 6. The Evolution of European science and technology policy and its links to the cohesion agenda ' David R. Charles | 97 |
| 7. The creation of harmonised patent protection in Europe Gerald Paterson | 127 |
| 8. How has tax affected the changing cost of R&D? Evidence from eight countries Nicholas Bloom, Lucy Chennells, Rachel Griffith and John Van Reenen | 136 |

9. Reconstructing the local and global: Europeanisation, regulation and changing knowledge relations 161
Henry Rothstein and Alan Irwin

IV Regulation in Practice

10. The globalisation of environmental and consumer protection regulation: resources and accountability 179
Erik Millstone
11. Science and technology in the defence industries: the growing influence of transnational industrial-governmental networks 201
John Lovering
12. The political economy of medicines regulation in Britain 221
John Abraham
- Index* 264