

Michael Mussa, editor'

PETERSON INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS
Washington, DC
December 2006

Contents

Preface	xi
1 C. Fred Bergsten: Intellectual Entrepreneur	1
Michael Mussa
Evangelist for the Open Economy	3
The Happy Cassandra	6
Star Player, Team Leader	8
Observations: C. Fred Bergsten, the Man and His Institute	10
2 Constant Ends, Flexible Means: C. Fred Bergsten and the Quest for Open Trade	15
I. M. Destler and Marcus Noland
Recurrent Themes	16
The Institute Years	23
Looking Ahead: Will the Same Patterns Persist?	31
3 Trade Policy at the Institute: 25 Years and Counting	39
Gary Clyde Hufbauer and Jeffrey J. Schott
Rampant Globalization	43
Multilateral Trade Negotiations	49
Bilateral and Regional Trade Negotiations	50
The US Free Trade Coalition Splinters	53
The Next 25 Years	56

4	Economic Sanctions and Threats in Foreign and Commercial Policy	61
	Kimberly Ann Elliott
	Economic Sanctions for Foreign Policy Goals	63
	Use of Trade Threats and Sanctions in Managing Trade Policy	71
	Summary and Conclusions	75
5	Trade Adjustment Assistance: The More We Change the More It Stays the Same	79
	Howard Rosen
	Origins of Trade Adjustment Assistance	80
	Two Steps Forward, One Step Back	82
	The 2002 Reforms "	85
	Running in Place	89
	Chamber of Commerce Support for TAA	93
	Unfinished Business	94
	TAA as a Model for Assistance to All Displaced Workers	99
	Cost Estimates for Reform Proposals	100
	Recent Congressional Activity	103
	Conclusion	103
	Appendix 5A	106
	Appendix 5B	110
	Appendix 5C	111
6	Fred Bergsten as an Early Architect of an International Regime for Foreign Direct Investment	115
	Edward M. Graham
	Bergsten as an Early Advocate of an International Regime for Investment	116
	Does the Case for an International Regime for Investment Still Stand?	127
7	The International Monetary System in the Work of the Institute	133
	Morris Goldstein
8	Fred Bergsten and the Institute's Work on Exchange Rate Regimes	145
	John Williamson
	History	146
	Target Zones	147
	The Blueprint	151
	Intervention	152

Crawling Bands for Emerging Markets	154
Baskets	155
The System: Tinkering or Reference Rates?	156
Concluding Remarks	158
9 What Can Exchange Rates Tell Us?	161
Edwin M. Truman
C. Fred Bergsten: Policymaker and Thinker	163
Methodology	167
The Evidence	174
Concluding Observations	210
10 Competitiveness and the Assessment of Trade Performance	215
Martin Neil Baily and Robert Z. Lawrence
The Competitiveness Problem Posed by the Competitiveness Policy Council	216
Has Recent US Economic Performance Matched the Goals of the CPC?	218
Refraining the Trade Competitiveness Debate	222
The Trade Balance and the Terms of Trade in Practice	228
Exploring Robustness	232
Impact of Oil and Exports on Worsened Trade Performance	235
Conclusions and Directions for New Research	236
11 International Debt: The Past Quarter Century and Future Prospects	243
William R. Cline
Principal Phases in the Past 25 Years	243
Institute Research and International Debt Policy	256
Conclusion	272
12 Follow the Money	275
Michael Mussa
The Great Moral Hazard Bugaboo	276
Problems with Large IMF Programs	298
The Way Forward	309
13 The IMF as Global Umpire for Exchange Rate Policies	313
Morris Goldstein
Why Currency Manipulation Is Important	314
Why Currency Manipulation Is Important and Still Relevant	316
Myths and Fallacies about Currency Manipulation	322

The IMF as Umpire for the Exchange Rate System	327
Initiatives for Discouraging Currency Manipulation	330
14 Institutional Strategy for the Global Economy	333
C. Randall Henning
Fred Bergsten's Contributions	334
Second-Generation Strategy	336
Assessment of the Strategy	340
Shortcomings of the Second-Generation Strategy	343
Rule Hardening Requires Political Reinforcement	344
Conclusion	347
15 Wanted: More Effective Public Communication in Empirical International Economics	353
I. David Richardson
A Brief Personal Retrospective	354
Public Payoffs and Professional Methods for Public Communication	355
A Mixed Assessment	358
Closing Thoughts	359
Appendix A Publications of C. Fred Bergsten	353
Index	371