About the Authors	xxxiii
PART I • FRAMING AND GROUNDING SITUATIONAL ANALYSIS	1
Introduction to Part I	1
Chapter 1 • Situational Analysis: Grounded Theory Mapping After the Interpretive Turn	3
What Is Grounded Theory?	3
A Focus on Coding and the “Basic Social Process”	4
A Genealogy of Grounded Theory and Situational Analysis	5
The First Generation	6
The Second Generation	7
The Interpretive Turn	8
Framing the Turns	9
Strands of Critique	11
Grounds for a New Method	12
Situational Maps and Analysis	15
Defining and Bounding “the Situation”	16
Constructing the Situation by Mapping	17
Reflections and Anticipations	18

Chapter 2 • Methodological Grounds of Situational Analysis 23

Grounded Theory, Pragmatism, and Interactionism: 24

- A Theory/Methods Package 24
- Grounded Theory as Always Already Around the Interpretive Turn 25
  - Perspectives, Partialities, and Situatedness 26
  - A Materialist Constructivism 26
  - Deconstructive Analysis 27
  - Analytic Abduction 27
    - Induction, Deduction, Abduction* 28
    - Grounded Theory and Abduction* 30
    - Situational Analysis and Abduction* 31
  - Processes and Contingencies 32
  - Differences(s) 32
  - Relationalitiés and Ecologies 33
- Grounded Theory as Recalcitrant Against the Interpretive Turn 33
  - Lack of Reflexivity and "Invisible" Researchers 34
  - Researcher as Tabula Rasa vis-à-vis Experience and Commitments 35
  - Researcher as Scholarly Tabula Rasa vis-à-vis the Literature Review 36
  - Researcher as Scholarly Tabula Rasa vis-à-vis Prior Theory 37
  - Research as "Giving Voice" to the "Unheard" 37
  - Problems of Oversimplification 38
  - A Singular Basic Social Process? 39
  - "Negative Cases" Rather Than Variation 39
  - The Search for "Purity" in Grounded Theory 40
- Pushing Grounded Theory Around the Interpretive Turn 41
  - Acknowledging Researchers' Embodiment and Situatedness 42
  - Pushing From the Conditional Matrix to the Situational Matrix 42
    - Strauss and Corbin's Conditional Matrices* 43
    - Clarke's Situational Matrix* 44
  - Grounding Inquiry in "the Situation" 47
  - Doing Situational Analysis 49
  - Turning to Discourse(s) 50
  - Analyzing Complexities: Positionality and Differences 51
    - Positionality* 51
    - Differences* 53
  - Sensitizing Concepts, Analytics, and Theorizing as Sufficient 54
- Reflections and Anticipations 56

Chapter 3 • Theoretical Grounds of Situational Analysis 61

The "(Re)Turn to the Social" Across Social Theory 62

Pragmatist Interactionist Origins: From Chicago Ecologies to Social Worlds/Arenas 63

- Grounding in Chicago Ecologies 65
- Conceptualizing the Situation 68

Key Concepts in Social Worlds/Arenas Theory	71
Social Worlds, Arenas, and Segments	71
Boundary Objects and Bandwagons	75
Implicated Actors and Actants	76
New Grounds I: Foucault and the Pragmatist Interactionist Project	77
Foucault and Pragmatism: Recent Interpretations	77
The Gaze	79
Discourse(s), Discourse Formations, and Disciplining	80
The Centrality of Practice(s) in Foucault and Pragmatism	81
Fields of Practice(s) and Conditions of Possibility	82
Dispositif and Situation	82
Foucault and Method	83
New Grounds II: Taking the Nonhuman Explicitly Into Account	85
On the Importance of Things in Pragmatism and Interactionism	86
Nonhuman Actors and Actants	87
Hybrids, Living Nonhumans, Cyborgs, Discourses, Whatever	88
Taking the Nonhuman Explicitly Into Account in Situational Analysis	90
New Grounds III: Deleuze and Guattari's Rhizomes and Assemblages	91
Rhizome as Inspiration	92
Assemblage as Metaphor	93
Deleuze, Guattari, and Qualitative Inquiry	95
Assembling the Theoretical Grounds of Situational Analysis	96

PART II • DOING SITUATIONAL ANALYSIS 101

Introduction to Part II 101

Chapter 4 • Getting Started: Practical Issues and Project Design 103

The Three Kinds of Situational Analysis Maps	104
Practical Issues in Getting Started	105
Topic Selection and Reflexivity	105
Everything Is Provisional	105
Know Thy Data	106
When Do You Start Mapping and Memoing?	106
Memo as You Map	107
What Counts as Data? Engaging Experience	107
On the Relationship Between GT and SA Analyses	108
Reading, Using, and Doing Exemplars of SA Projects	109
Doing Situational Analysis Project Design	110
Doing Preliminary Memos and Situational Maps for SA Project Design	110
Initial Project Memos	110
Preliminary Project Situational Maps	111
Starting (or Continuing) the Literature Review	112
Beginning to Plan the Research	112
SA Strategies for Proposals, Grants, and Ethics Reviews	114

Issues in Situational Analysis Project Design	116
Framing the Situation	116
Accountability in Design and Data Gathering	119
Use of Sensitizing Concepts and Received Theory in SA	121
Conceptual “Levels of Analysis” in SA	122
Ongoing Mapping, Criticism, and Revising	123
Technical Tools Supporting Situational Analysis	124
Turning to Analysis	125
Chapter 5 • Doing Situational and Relational Maps	127
Abstract Situational Maps	128
Introducing the First Exemplar: Bone’s Project	132
Situational Maps of Bone’s Project	134
Doing Relational Analyses With Situational Maps	138
Relational Maps of Bone’s Project	141
Final Comments on Situational and Relational Maps	144
Chapter 6 • Doing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	147
What Are Social Worlds and Arenas?	148
Why Are Social Worlds and Arenas Analytically Important?	149
Introducing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	151
Social Worlds/Arenas Map of Bone’s Project	151
Doing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	155
Memoing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	157
Using Social Worlds/Arenas Maps in Your Project	160
Final Comments on Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	162
Chapter 7 • Doing Positional Maps	165
Abstract Positional Maps	166
Positional Maps of Bone’s Project	168
Constructing Your Own Positional Maps	170
Articulating and Acting Upon Absent Positions	172
Why Are Positional Maps So Important?	173
Final Comments on Positional Maps	174
Chapter 8 • A Fully Worked Exemplar of Situational Analysis	177
Introducing Alonso-Yanez’s Project	177
Alonso-Yanez’s Situational Maps	179
Alonso-Yanez’s Relational Maps	181

Alonso-Yanez's Social Worlds/Arenas Map	187
Alonso-Yanez's Positional Maps	190
Provisional Conclusions on Alonso-Yanez's Project	193
Chapter 9 • Writing It Up: Final Presentations and Project Maps	195
Writing It Up as an Analytic Process	196
Questions to Ask Toward Writing it Up	198
Using Your Memos in Finalizing the Project	200
Planning Your Write-Ups Memos	200
Basic Project Information Memo	201
Turning Situational Analysis Maps Into Final Project Maps	202
Situational and Relational Maps as Project Maps	202
Social Worlds/Arenas Maps as Project Maps	203
Positional Maps as Project Maps	204
Possibilities for Presenting and Publishing Your SA Project	206
Deciding on Audiences and Formats	208
Distinctive Characteristics of SA Projects	209
A Relational Ecological Overview	210
A Project Map Focus	211
A Diagrammatic Focus	211
Temporary Conclusions	214
PART III • MAPPING EXTANT DISCOURSE MATERIALS	217
Introduction to Part III	217
Chapter 10 • Turning to Discourses	219
What Is Discourse?	220
Why Analyze Discourses?	222
Turning Up the Volume on "Minor" Discourses	225
Single Site and Multisite Approaches	227
Single Site Approaches	227
A Single Site SA Discourse Project Exemplar	227
Multisite and Multiscale Approaches	228
A Multisite SA Discourse Project Exemplar	229
How to Design SA Discourse Projects	229
Choosing a Single Site or Multisite Design	230
Single Site SA Discourse Project Ideas	230
Multisite SA Discourse Project Ideas	231
Selecting Discourse Data for Your SA Project	232
Handling Hybrid Extant Discourse Materials	234
Pursuing Integrative and/or Comparative Mapping	235
Turnings	237

Chapter 11 • Mapping Narrative Discourse Materials	241
Kinds of Extant Narrative Discourse Materials	242
Designing a Narrative Discourse Project	244
Which Narrative Discourse Materials?	244
Locating, Collecting, Tracking, Situating	245
Initial Memos of Discourse Materials	247
Doing Situational Maps of Narrative Discourse Materials	248
Introducing the Narrative Discourse Exemplar:
RU486 Discourse Project	249
Situational Map Exemplar: RU486 Discourse Project	251
Doing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps of Narrative Discourse Materials	253
Social Worlds/Arenas Map Exemplar: RU486 Discourse Project	255
Debating the Project's Scope	255
On the Elasticity of Social Worlds/Arenas Analysis	261
Doing Positional Maps of Narrative Discourse Materials	261
Positional Map Exemplars: RU486 Discourse Project	262
Abstract Perspectival Project Maps	263
Final Comments: Situational Analysis of Narrative Discourse Materials	266
Chapter 12 • Mapping Visual Discourse Materials	269
The Rise of Visual Cultures	270
Claims to Realism and Gazes	272
Exemplary Research Analyzing Visual Discourse	273
Situating Visuals: Social Worlds and Visual Cultures	275
Doing Situational Analysis of Visual Discourse Materials	277
Which Visual Materials? Deciding, Locating, Collecting, Tracking	278
Entering and Memoing Visual Discourse Materials	279
Locating Memo	280
Big Picture Memo	281
Specification Memo	282
Doing Situational Maps of Visual Discourse Materials	284
Doing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps of Visual Discourse Materials	285
Doing Positional Maps of Visual Discourse Materials	285
Visual Discourse Exemplar: Washburn's Biomonitoring Project	286
Washburn's Visual Discourse Materials	287
Locating Memo: Advocacy Biomonitoring Reports	291
Big Picture Memo: Advocacy Biomonitoring Reports	291
Specification Memo: Advocacy Biomonitoring Reports	295
Washburn's SA Maps of Advocacy Biomonitoring Imagery	299
Washburn's Situational Maps: Advocacy Biomonitoring Imagery	299
Washburn's Social Worlds/Arenas Map: Advocacy Biomonitoring Imagery	299
Washburn's Positional Maps: Advocacy Biomonitoring Imagery	304

Washburn's Positional Map 1: Focus on Chemical Exposures     in Biomonitoring Images	304
Washburn's Positional Map 2: Focus on Individual-Level     Biomonitoring Data	305
Washburn's Analytic Summary: Biomonitoring Project Imagery	308
Final Comments: Situational Analysis of Visual Discourse Materials	309
Chapter 13 • Mapping Historical Discourse Materials	313
Historicizing Historical Approaches	314
Designing Historical and Historicizing Projects	317
Design Issues	319
Historical Discourse Analysis Exemplar: Introducing Message's Project	320
Doing Situational Maps of Historical Discourse Materials	322
Exemplar: Message's Situational Maps	323
Doing Social Worlds/Arenas Maps of Historical Discourse Materials	336
Exemplar: Message's Social Worlds/Arenas Maps	337
Doing Positional Maps of Historical Discourse Materials	341
Exemplar: Message's Positional Maps	342
Final Comments: Situational Analysis of Historical Discourse Materials	346
Epilogue: Situational Analysis Issues and FAQs	349
Comparing Early GT With Constructivist GT and SA	351
Tips on Learning and Teaching Situational Analysis	351
Learning SA	351
Teaching SA	354
Decolonizing and (Post)Colonial Situational Analysis	357
SA Mapping as Facilitating Engagement and Collaboration	359
FAQs About Situational Analysis	361
Final Words	369
