

The Changing Role of Government

The Reform of Public Services in Developing Countries

Richard Batley and George Larbi
University of Birmingham, UK

Contents

List of Tables	viii
List of Figure and Boxes	ix
List of Acronyms and Abbreviations	x
Preface	xi
About the Authors	xiii
1 Changing Views of the Role of the Government	1
Introduction	1
The role of government in development	2
The background to public service reform in developing countries	7
Capacity to perform the 'new' roles of government	15
An overview of the study	20
Conclusion	28
2 Changing Approaches to Public Sector Management	31
Introduction	31
Theoretical basis of new approaches to public management	31
Pragmatic rationales for public sector reforms	38
From old public administration to new public management	39
The era of new public management	40
A review of new public management in practice	44
Conclusion	52
3 The Politics of Service Reform	54
Introduction	54
Political stakes in the reform of public management	56
Principals and agents in public service reform	58
External bodies - agents or principals?	58
The principal-agency characteristics of services	62
The 'principals' - citizens and political leaders	65
The 'agents' - public service administrators, professionals and workers	71
Emerging constituencies for change	76
Conclusion	78

4 Decentralizing Organizational Arrangements for Service Delivery	81
- Introduction	81
Pre-reform organizational arrangements	81
Types of organizational arrangements	85
Reform of organizational arrangements	88
Have reforms improved performance?	98
Institutional and capacity issues	102
Conclusion	104
5 The Experience of Charging for Public Services	106
Introduction	106
Explaining user charges	106
Charging - what and how?	110
Charging: performance and impact	116
Conclusion	123
6 Working with Private Partners	125
The case for privatizing management	125
Organizational arrangements for service provision	128
The application of public-private arrangements for service delivery	133
Matching organizational arrangements to capacity	136
Conclusion	142
7 The Experience of Contracting	144
Introduction	144
The use of contractual arrangements	145
Assessment of the experience of contracting	158
Capacity to contract	167
Conclusion	177
8 Regulating and Enabling the Private Sector	180
Introduction	180
Forms of regulation	181
De-regulation and support to market development	184
Re-regulation under the new management	185
Economic regulation, of urban water supply	186
The social regulation of health services	195
Enablement of private providers - business support services	203
A comparison of the experience of regulation and enabling	215

9 Conclusion	219
Introduction	219
Summary	220
Performance and capacity constraints in specific, reforms	224
Implications for capacity development	232
Conclusion	235
Notes	238
Bibliography	240
Index	253