dandelon.com
© 200 AGI-Information Management Consultants
May be used for personal purposes only or by libraries associated to dandelon.com network.

MARTIN LINDSTROM
with Patricia B Seybold

BRAND child

Remarkable insights into the minds of today's global kids and their relationships with brands

Millward Brown
squib
AFA

KOGAN PAGE

London and Sterling, VA

Contents

About the study xvii

About the authors and contributors xix

BRANDchild updated at DualBook.com xxiii

Foreword xxv

Acknowledgements xxvii

1 Tweens 1
Meet the new kids 1
Planet kids 15
  Edges 15
  Persuaders 16
  Followers 16
  Reflexives 16
Summary 23
Action points 24

2 Tween dreams for sale 25
Fear 26
Fantasy 29
  Goodbye creativity 30
  Goodnight Harry 31
Mastery 33
Humour 34
Love 35
Stability 37
The mirror effect 39
Collection value 40

Gaming ability 41
Summary 42
Action points 43

3 Bonded to brands: the transition years Nigel Hollis 45
CEO's heads explode! 45
    Complex 45
    Dynamic 46
    Cluttered 46
    Why it's worth the pain 46
    Brand advocates 47
    Brand loyalists 47
Forming the bond between tweens and brands 48
    Real brand loyalty needs strong foundation 48
    Presence 49
    Relevance 49
    Performance 49
    Advantage 49
    Bonding 50
The power of brands transcends generations 50
    Peer pressure helps undermine tween loyalty 52
    The glass is not 40 per cent empty, it's 60 per cent full 54
Tapping into the power of tween advocacy 55
Tapping into future loyalty 57
    Exploring tweens' relationships with adult brands 57
    Tweens do bond with grown-up brands 58
    Presence creates potential 59
Brand attraction matters 60
    Avoid the negatives 61
    Television is still the focus of attention 63
    Why television advertising is still so important 64
Tweens are just like us, only more so 65
Summary 66
Action points 67
    Assess current situation 68
    Going forward 68

4 Exit fairyland 71
Beliefs versus dreams versus aspirations 71
God inc. 72
The death of belief 75
The new icons 76
Tweens are inspired by tweens, who are inspired by tweens… 78
    A challenging community 79

The search for the true tween aspiration 80
Tribes 82
  What makes them believe? 83
  The dream factory 83
  Building trust among a skeptical audience 84
Summary 87
Action points 88

5 Creating imagination 91
Building the sensory experience 92
Licensing is more than just spreading the news 92
You've got Britney 93
The networked brand 94
Brand + Nothing = Fiasco 95
Offline – online 96
Sound + Sight + Smell + Taste + Touch = Brand 97
  Sound 98
  Sight 100
  Real image versus illustration 101
  Touch 102
  Smell 104
  Taste 106
It all adds up 107
Summary 107
Action points 108

6 How do tweens *feel about Patricia B Seybold 111
Brands vs no brands 111
How passionately do tweens feel about different types of brand experience? 112
  'Personal' brands are as important to tweens as 'for profit' brands 116
Relationship with corporate brands 117
Summary 119

7 Stardust 121
Creating icons we admire 122
Music = dreams = brands 122
  The look of music 123
Mainstream has become substream 125
  The similarity is that there is no similarity 125
Three fundamentals 125
  Dreams 125
  Romance 126
  Rebellion 127
  It's getting younger 127

Branding is all about personality 128
Every brand is a human brand 130
Being direct 130
  Cause-related brands 131
  Cause-related marketing 131
  Attitude branding 132
  Crossing the 'fine' line… 133
Summary 135
Action points 136

8 The peer factor 137
Using peer-to-peer marketing to build brands 138
  Community exploration 139
  Peer-to-peer marketing 139
  Viral marketing 139
  1. Identify a community 139
  2. Map the behaviour of the community 141
  3. Identify alternative distribution channels 142
  4. Identify the leaders of the community 143
  5. Build a peer-to-peer marketing programs around the leaders 144
  6. Place tweens in the centre – not the brand 146
  7. Support the community with unique initiatives 147
  8. Develop viral marketing tools enabling the tweens to market for you 151
  9. Let the outside world know about the community success 152
  10. Spread the brand to audiences outside the community 154
Summary 155
Action points 156

9 Cyberchild 157
Welcome to a new tween reality 157
  EverQuest: you are in our world now 158
  The day the virtual world became visible on the map 160
Creating a new tween identity 160
  The game is to survive – in the real world 161
  The intrusion of real dollars 161
  Closer and closer to reality 162
  Virtual clicks-and-mortar 163
Marketing in many virtual worlds 163
  A marketer's dreams? 163
  Welcome to the world of virtual branding 164
  The true fusion of clicks with bricks 165
  The 'dual' personality of tweens 165
  Reverse direct marketing 167

- Targeting the mercurial personality 167
- The tools are there, but they still aren't good enough 168

Eight guidelines for targeting tweens 169

- One target group description is never enough 169
- Be out there 170
- Creative relevance 171
- Creating synergy across channels 172
- Channel synergy 172
- Building virtual brands in virtual worlds 173
- Avoiding brand suicide 175
- Adapting your language to fit the audience 175
- Welcome to TweenSpeak 175
- Speeding up the evolution of TweenSpeak 176
- Preparing your message for new channels 177
- The future is all about branding everything – including language 179
- How far did you go? 179
- What are the guidelines? 179
- What's your brand's language? 180

It all counts 181

Summary 181

Action points 182

10 Personalized brands build strong businesses Patricia B Seybold 185

Kids help to design an interactive retail concept 186

What's the Build-a-Bear experience? 186

Built-in upselling and cross-selling 188

Beary viral marketing 188

- Beary birthdays 188
- Recruiting store associates 189

Keep the honey flowing and the buzz alive 189

Staying attuned to customers 190

Summary 190

11 Santa's nightmare 193

Adding life to brands 194

- The death of toys as we knew them 195

Where it all begins 195

- Identity seeking 197
- Fish streaming 197
- Constantly seeking confirmation 200
- Quick to adopt, quick to reject 200
- Hate to be sold and love to be respected 201
- Broader in scope, shallow in detail 203
- Been there, done that 203
- Community dependency 204

Where does all this leave the tweens… and us? 206
Summary 207
Action points 208

12 The essence of being a child Yun Mi Antorini 209
Targeting children to build a brand 210
    Things are about to change 211
    Brand power to the people 211
    To win children, you've gotta have children 212
Building kids' brands 213

13 Pump up the volume 215
The young and the rich 216
    Labelling wishes 217
    Where does the money come from? 217
360-degree tween branding 218
    A day in the life of a tween 219
    Infotainment 219
    Edutainment 219
    The edutainment excursion 220
    Celebrity endorsements 221
    Enter the celebrities 221
    Meeting the cyber friends 222
    Spinning a web with Spider-Man 222
    Loyalty concepts 223
    Belonging 223
    One club, three purposes 224
    Advertainment 225
    Classic product placement 225
    At the movies 226
    Bricks-and-mortar advertainment 227
    Weekend time 228
The future? 228
    Lifetime loyalty 229
Summary 230
Action points 231

14 Superchannels 233
Welcome to the brave new world of media players 234
The next generation of media planning 235
    The future is all about brand alliances 236
    Back-door branding 237
    A 'real' world, 24 hours a day… in fairyland 238
    Turn the consumer's problems to your advantage 245

    It's now or never 245
  Summary 245
  Action points 246

15 Kidzbiz 249
  Why tweens? 250
    Growing big and staying big 252
    Categorizing brand trends 254
    Olympic brands 255
    Classic 256
    Specialist 256
    Little Tiger 257
    Defenders 257
    Clean Slate 257
    Fading Star 258
    Weak 259
    The brand trend 259
    1. Emotions are driving tweens – and so are brands 260
    2. Brand consistency: in search of solid connections 262
    3. Product innovation: justifying the brand value to tweens 265
    4. Price management: tweens are prepared to pay the price 266
    5. Portfolio management: tweens don't buy products, they buy brand solutions 267
    6. Channel optimization: at any time, tweens are using any channel 269
    7. Perception management: reading the tween mind 271
    8. Brand flexibility: no-one can predict what tweens will be like in two years 273
    9. Brand interaction: monologue is out, brand dialogue is in 274
    10. Leadership: tweens deal only with the leader of the pack 277
    The human brand 277
  Summary 279
  Action points 280

16 Tweens take to hats 281
  Where did you get your lid? 281
  The Lids customer experience 282
  Encouraging repeat buying behaviour 283
  Early pioneer of the integrated clicks-and-bricks experience 284
    Supporting non-credit card buyers 285
    The melon meter: getting a good fit on the Web 285
    Make the entire inventory available online 285
    Delivering a seamless clicks-and-bricks experience 286

- Overzealous retail expansion led to a merger with HatWorld 286
  - Giving customers the ability to design their own hats 287
- Summary 287

17 Calling kids 289

  - Don't talk down 289
- KGOY 290
  - Watch your brand radar carefully 290
  - 1-800-PROVEIT 291
  - Irony 291
  - The invisible brand 293
  - Find your niche 295
  - Invent your own sub-channel 295
  - Reviewing product placement 296
  - Advertainment 296
  - Pandora's branded box 298
  - Back to the future 299
  - Today's tween hero: the brand! 299
  - Change the operating hours 300
  - A transparent brand 301
  - Privacy 303
  - Involve them in your plans 303
  - Show empathy 304
- The dramatic shift in marketing planning 305
  - Interactive marketing planning 305
  - The brand war room 306
- Summary 307
- Action points 308

Appendix 1: The BRANDchild research: the world's most extensive study of tween attitudes and brand relationships 311

Appendix 2: Code of ethics 315

Index 317