

The Tradition of Free Trade

Lars Magnusson

R Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

Contents

Acknowledgements	xiii
1 The invention of a tradition of free trade: an introduction	1
A historical reading of the history of economics	4
The use and diffusion of economic language	14
2 The heritage from Smith and classical political economy	20
Adam Smith as a system builder	27
The historical Smith	30
The real classical economists	36
3 The invention of a tradition: from the Corn Laws to the fair trade controversy	46
The Christian moralist – and others	53
Manchester uses of Adam Smith	57
Popular economics	61
The fair trade debate	64
4 The historical construction of mercantilism	70
Mercantilism	72
Adam Smith's mercantile system today	74
The historical construction of a concept	78
Manchester and the mercantile system	82

The role of mercantilism in nineteenth-century economic thought 90

5 The American system 92

The other face of American political economy 94

Henry C. Carey 100

John Rae 104

The American system 106

Free-traders in the Antebellum South 113

After the Civil War 116

6 The three systems of political economy:
a Swedish case of translation 123

Early economics in Sweden 126

Physiocracy in Sweden 130

Smith, Sweden and the industrial system 140

7 Epilogue 152

Notes 158

Select bibliography 178

Index 190