

EAST ASIA

RECOVERY AND BEYOND

THE WORLD BANK
WASHINGTON, D.C.

CONTENTS

Foreword	v
Acknowledgments	vii
Executive Summary	1
1 Recovery Gathers Momentum	3
Dynamics of the recovery	5
Legacies of crisis—and the new vulnerability	11
From recovery to a new era of high growth?	14
Note	16
References	16
2 Managing Financial Integration	19
The first phase: emerging vulnerabilities	20
The second phase: responding to the crisis	26
The third phase: the road to recovery	35
The situation in China	36
Future challenges for financial integration	37
Notes	40
References	41
3 Maintaining Trade and Investment Competitiveness	45
Cyclical changes in trade	47
Structural and policy factors affecting trade performance	50
Trends in and issues for foreign direct investment	56
Making the most of the knowledge economy	61
Conclusion	64
Notes	65
References	65

4	Transforming Banks and Corporations	67
	What compounded the crisis?	68
	Financial restructuring since the crisis	70
	How have firms fared?	73
	Issues and policy options	77
	Corporate governance and ownership	81
	The crisis and China	88
	Notes	92
	References	93
5	Responding to the Governance Challenge	95
	Crisis-driven pressures in public finance	96
	Global and domestic pressures for change in government	98
	What can be done to improve public institutions?	103
	Future directions for governance	110
	Notes	111
	Table note	111
	References	111
6	Adjusting Social Policy and Protecting the Poor	113
	The effect of the crisis on poverty, inequality, and households	114
	Household responses to the crisis	121
	Government responses to the crisis	123
	Lessons for social policies	129
	Social policies to protect the vulnerable	130
	Notes	137
	References	138
7	Developing Strategies for a New Miracle	141
	A new era of high growth?	142
	A strategy for institutions and growth	146
	Regional and multilateral initiatives for a new era of growth	152
	Toward a new development strategy	155
	Notes	156
	Table note	156
	References	157