

The Political Economy of Transition in Eurasia

DEMOCRATIZATION AND ECONOMIC LIBERALIZATION IN A GLOBAL ECONOMY

Edited by Norman A. Graham and Folke Lindahl

Contents

1	1	Introduction and Overview Norman A. Graham
43	*%	Too Few or Too Many Parties? The Implications of Electoral Engineering in Post-Communist States Erik S. Herron
67	n	Hegel's Institutional Liberalism: Political Economy and Civil Society in the Philosophy of Right Louis D. Hunt
95	/	The Dissidents and the Antipolitical Ideology of Civil Society Folke Lindahl
139	C	Nation-Building in East Central Europe: Civic or Ethnic Majorities? Kathleen M. Dowley
157	/	Party Development in Russia Axel Hadenius
197	"7	The Political Elite in Hungary Through Transition Jin Lach

- 217 ft A Post-Communist Landscape: Social and Moral Costs of the Regime Change in Post-Communist Hungary
Andras Lanczi
- 237 Q Why is Romania Different? A Perspective on the Economic Transition
Mircea T. Maniu
- 255 ^ ft On the Question of European-ness in Romania: Between an Institutional Construction and an Imagological Perception
Marius Jucan
- 277 Conclusion
Norman A. Graham and Folke Lindahl
- 287 About the Contributors