

The CRASH and Its Aftermath

A History of Securities Markets
in the United States,
1929-1933

Barrie A. Wigmore

Contributions in Economics and Economic History, Number 58

*Greenwood Press
Westport, Connecticut
London, England*

Contents

Preface	xv
Abbreviations	xix
1. The Crash	3
Introduction	3
The Course of Events in the Stock Market Leading up to the Crash	4
The Crash	6
Technical Factors behind the Crash	26
The Brokers Survive the Crash Intact	31
Specific Industries and Individual Stocks in 1929	34
The Railroad Industry	34
The Operating Public Utility Industry	38
Holding and Investment Companies	40
The Public Utility Holding Companies	40
The Investment Trusts	42
The Non-utility Holding Companies	46
The Banks	47
The Oil Industry	52
The Chemical Industry	54
The Food Industry	56
The Mining Industry	58
The Motion Picture Companies	61
The Steel Industry	63
The Automobile Manufacturers	66
The Consumer Products Companies	69
The Retailers	71
The Tire Industry	74
The Farm Equipment Industry	74

The Tobacco Companies	76
The Pulp and Paper Industry	78
The Office Equipment Companies	80
Other Stocks	83
Summary	86
2. Political and Economic Influences on Securities Markets in 1929	89
The U.S. Government—Herbert Hoover Tries to Rally the Nation	89
Monetary Policy, Money Markets, and the Banking System—The Federal Reserve and Speculative Demand Create Tight Money Prior to the Crash, But Confidence is Maintained Following the Crash by Easy Money and the Strength of the Banking System	91
The U.S. Economy Falters before the Crash and Then Drops Sharply	101
Prices Are Stable until the Crash, When They Begin to Decline	102
3. Bond Markets in 1929	105
The Bond Market before the Crash	105
The Bond Market in the Crash	109
The Municipal Bond Market Declines All Year until the Crash, after Which it Rises Strongly	110
4. Political and Economic Influences on Securities Markets in 1930	113
Hoover's Actions Produce Initial Optimism, But the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Marks a Turning Point for the Worse	113
Monetary Policy, Money Markets, and the Banking System—Credit Conditions Are the Easiest in a Decade, But Small Banks Close in Record Numbers and Bigger Problems Incubate in the Larger Banks	116
Money Markets	118
The Banking System	118
Criticism of the Federal Reserve Role in 1930	125
The Grounds for Optimism in Early 1930	128
The Economy's Decline Becomes Clear by Mid-1930	130
Commodities Prices Drop Precipitously	132
5. The Stock Market in 1930	137
The Course of Events—Stock Prices Recover until a Sharp Decline in June	138
Specific Industries and Individual Stocks in 1930	145
The Railroad Industry	146
The Operating Public Utility Industry	149
Holding and Investment Companies	151
The Public Utility Holding Companies	152
The Investment Trusts	154
The Non-utility Holding Companies	158
The Banks	160
The Oil Industry	163

The Chemical Industry	165
The Food Industry	165
The Mining Industry	168
The Motion Picture Companies	168
The Steel Industry	175
The Automobile Manufacturers	176
The Consumer Products Companies	179
The Retailers	182
The Tire Industry	182
The Farm Equipment Industry	184
The Tobacco Companies	184
The Pulp and Paper Industry	188
The Office Equipment Companies	188
Other Stocks	191
Summary	193
6. Bond Markets in 1930	195
The New Issue Business Is Strong until Credit Fears Develop in the Last Quarter	195
The Demise of the Foreign Bond Market	198
Municipal Bond Prices Rise until Credit Fears Develop in the Last Quarter	206
Summary of 1930	207
7. Political and Economic Influences on Securities Markets in 1931	209
Herbert Hoover Tries to Respond to the Problems of the Economy, Europe, and the Banks But Is Constrained by the Budget Deficit Monetary Policy, Money Markets, and the Banking System—Low Interest Rates Prevail until the Sterling Crisis, Which Is Followed by Record Failures among Small Banks	209
The Economy Declines on Every Front, Especially after the Sterling Crisis	212
Commodities Prices Decline All Year, Reaching Lows in the Sterling Crisis	228
	231
8. The Stock Market in 1931	235
The Course of Events—Optimism Prevails until Spring, Whereafter Europe's Currency Problems Lead to a Sharp Decline in Stock Prices	235
Brokerage Firms Begin to Fail, and Other Technical Aspects of the Market	237
Specific Industries and Individual Stocks in 1931	240
The Railroad Industry	240
The Operating Public Utility Industry	243
Holding and Investment Companies	245
The Public Utility Holding Companies	245

The Investment Trusts	248
The Non-utility Holding Companies	251
The Banks	254
The Oil Industry	257
The Chemical Industry	257
The Food Industry	259
The Mining Industry	262
The Motion Picture Companies	264
The Steel Industry	266
The Automobile Manufacturers	266
The Consumer Products Companies	269
The Retailers	269
The Tire Industry	271
The Farm Equipment Industry	274
The Tobacco Companies	274
The Pulp and Paper Industry	277
The Office Equipment Companies	277
Other Stocks	277
Summary	281
9. Bond Markets in 1931	285
Bond Markets in General	285
The Course of Events—Interest Rates Decline to Their Lowest Levels Since the Crash, Until the Currency Crisis Drives Them to New High Levels	286
Railroad Bonds Collapse	287
Utility Bonds Become the Premier Corporate Bond Investment	288
Industrial Bonds	288
U.S. Government Bonds	289
Municipal Bonds	290
The Foreign Bond Market—The South American Countries Default, and a Currency Crisis Strikes Europe	291
Summary of 1931 Financial Markets	305
10. Political and Economic Influences on Securities Markets in 1932	307
The Hoover Administration Is Constrained in Its Attack on the Depression by the Budget Deficit	308
The Economy Declines to Levels Threatening a Breakdown of the Economic System	315
Monetary Policy, Money Markets, and the Banking System—A Liquidity Crisis Develops Outside of New York City Banks, Despite Unprecedented Open Market Purchases by the Federal Reserve and Large-scale Loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation	317
Prices Drop to Their Lowest Levels in the Depression	327
11. The Stock Market in 1932	331

The Course of Events—Stocks Reach the Lowest Point in the Depression in June and July	331
Technical Aspects of the Market—The Brokerage Business Contracts as Trading Dries Up	335
Specific Industries and Individual Stocks in 1932	337
The Railroad Industry	337
The Operating Public Utility Industry	339
Holding and Investment Companies	342
The Public Utility Holding Companies	342
The Investment Trusts	348
The Non-utility Holding Companies	351
The Banks	354
The Oil Industry	361
The Chemical Industry	363
The Food Industry	366
The Mining Industry	366
The Motion Picture Companies	370
The Steel Industry	372
The Automobile Manufacturers	374
The Consumer Products Companies	374
The Retailers	377
The Tire Industry	379
The Farm Equipment Industry	379
The Tobacco Companies	382
The Pulp and Paper Industry	382
The Office Equipment Companies	382
Other Stocks	386
Summary	388
12. Bond Markets in 1932	391
Bond Markets in General	391
U.S. Government and Corporate Bond Markets—High Grade Bond Rates Decline, But There Is a Crisis in Low Grade Corporate Bonds	392
The First Quarter of 1932	392
The Crisis in Railroad Bonds	394
Utility Bonds	395
Industrial Bonds	396
U.S. Government Bonds	396
The Last Half of 1932	397
The Municipal Bond Market Separates Sharply into High Grade and Low Grade Credits Because Local Governments Develop Severe Financial Problems for the First Time in the Depression	400
The Foreign Bond Market—The International Finance System Contracts Due to Trade Barriers, War Debts, Defaults, and Loss of Confidence	409
Summary of 1932 Financial Markets	418

13. Political and Economic Influences on Securities Markets in 1933	421
Hoover's Period as a Lame Duck Culminates in the Bank Holiday and Is Followed by the Financial and Economic Experimentation of Roosevelt's First Hundred Days	422
The Economy Hits a Low Point During the Bank Crisis Comparable to the Worst in 1932, But Recovers Dramatically during Roosevelt's First Hundred Days	428
The Bottom	429
The Turning Point	431
Prices Begin to Rise for the First Time in the Depression, Due to Devaluation of the Dollar and the Change in the Business Outlook	432
The Banking System, Monetary Policy, and Money Markets—Domestic and Foreign Deposit Withdrawals Result in the Bank Holiday of March 4, 1933, But Recovery Is Quick with the Aid of Many New Banking Laws and a Spirit of Renewed Hope	433
14. The Stock Market in 1933	455
The Course of Events—Stock Prices Come Close to Their Low Prices of 1932 during the Bank Crisis, But More Than Double during Roosevelt's First Hundred Days	455
Technical Aspects of the Market—The Brokerage Industry Continues to Contract, But Trading Volume and Margin Borrowing Rise	457
Specific Industries and Individual Stocks in 1933	458
The Railroad Industry	458
The Operating Public Utility Industry	461
Holding and Investment Companies	463
The Public Utility Holding Companies	463
The Investment Trusts	465
The Non-utility Holding Companies	465
The Banks	468
The Oil Industry	470
The Chemical Industry	471
The Food Industry	474
The Mining Industry	476
The Motion Picture Companies	479
The Steel Industry	481
The Automobile Manufacturers	481
The Consumer Products Companies	484
The Retailers	484
The Tire Industry	487
The Farm Equipment Industry	489
The Tobacco Companies	489
The Pulp and Paper Industry	492
The Office Equipment Companies	492
Other Stocks	495
Summary	497

15. Bond Markets in 1933	499
Bond Markets in General	499
U.S. Government and Corporate Bond Markets—All Bond Prices
Decline in the Bank Crisis But There is a General Recovery during
President Roosevelt's First Hundred Days	500
The Bond Market during the Bank Crisis	500
The Bond Market during and after President Roosevelt's First
Hundred Days	503
Railroad Bonds	504
Public Utility Bonds	506
Industrial Bonds	507
U.S. Treasury Bonds	509
The Municipal Bond Market Has Its Worst Year of the Depression Due to the Burden of Welfare Expenditures, Which Produces New Taxes
and Federal Aid	511
The Foreign Bond Market Remains Volatile and Thin Amid Devaluation of the Dollar, the Failure of the World Economic and
Monetary Conference, and Rising German and Japanese Aggression	517
International Events	517
Foreign Bonds	522
Summary of 1933	526
16. Summary and Conclusions	529
The Course of Financial Events from 1929 to 1933	529
Conclusions About Stocks	541
Conclusions About Bonds	544
The Minor Role of Monetary Policy in the Depression	549
Statistical Appendix	557
Bibliography	703
Index	709