

European Policies for a Knowledge Economy

Maria Joao Rodrigues

Professor, ISCTE- University Institute, Lisbon, and President of the Social Sciences Advisory Group to the European Commission

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of figures	ix
List of tables	xi
List of boxes	xiii
Preface	xv
1. European dilemmas and new prospects	1
International and European scenarios	1
A knowledge society	4
Knowledge economy and institutional reforms	6
Knowledge policies	9
Bibliography	11
2. Strategy and governance for a knowledge economy	14
The point of departure of a European strategy	14
The Lisbon strategy	16
Strategy and governance	18
The invention of a political method	19
On the open method of coordination	23
Overview of the Lisbon strategy implementation	29
Bibliography	32
3. Policies for the information society	36
The IT revolution	36
Public policies for a European way	38
The e-Europe action plan	41
Taking stock of the European policy for the information society	43
Exploring a virtuous circle	47
Some key issues for the future	49
Bibliography	50
4. Policies for research and development	52
A gap in European research capacity	52

	The stages of the European research policy	55
	Building a European research area	56
	Regional development and research	59
	Priority themes for research in Europe	60
	The international dimension of the European research policy	64
	Key issues for the future	65
	Bibliography	67
5.	Policies for enterprise and innovation	69
	Competitiveness and the knowledge-based economy	69
	The internal market and economic reforms	71
	The European policy for enterprise and entrepreneurship	74
	Developing a European policy for innovation	80
	Key issues for the future . ;	84
	Bibliography	86
6.	A learning society	89
	A learning society	89
	Learning new competences	90
	Open learning centres	92
	New objectives for education policy	95
	From lifelong learning to higher education	96
	Key issues for the future	102
	Bibliography	103
7.	Renewing the European social model	106
	New challenges for the European social model	106
	Priorities for renewing the European social model	109
	Employment policies	110
	Social protection policies	113
	Social inclusion policies	117
	Improving the European dimension of social dialogue	117
	For a preliminary assessment	119
	Bibliography	124
8.	Conclusion	128
	A preliminary assessment	129
	Key issues for the future	131

Some implications of the Lisbon strategy for the institutional reform of the European Union	132
Post Scriptum	- 135
Bibliography	138
Appendix:
Presidency conclusions of the Lisbon European Council	140
Employment, economic reform and social cohesion	140
Documents submitted to the Lisbon European Council	158
Index	161