CONTENTS

Timeline ix
Maps xxi

Introduction: Ideas of India 1

1 Making English India 11

  Writing nation and history 13
  Anglicizing India: project and response 15
  Bilingual self-fashioning 17
  Two early historical novels 20

2 Ethnography, Gender, and Nation 25

  The first anglophone novel: Rajmohan’s Wife 28
  Sacred nationhood: Anandamath 31
  Woman, nation, and idolatry: The Home and the World 34
  Women and self-representation: Kamala and Saguna 39

3 ‘Mahatma-Magic’: Gandhi and Literary India 43

  Mythmaking: Kanthapura 46
  The machine: Mulk Raj Anand’s Untouchable 50
  All Gandhi’s men: Waiting for the Mahatma 54
  Spiritual leadership and self-knowledge: The Guide 57
  The perils of performance: He Who Rides a Tiger 61
  Colonial legend to postcolonial touchstone:
    Gandhi in Nayantara Sahgal’s novels 63
    Great Indian soul and The Great Indian Novel 67

4 Writing Partition 69

  Witnessing the past: Train to Pakistan 70
  Gender and the romance of nation: The Heart Divided 72
  Violence and the Other: Ice-Candy-Man and Noor 75
  Fragmented nations, divided histories: Shame 78
Othering the self: The Shadow Lines
Writing the counterfactual: Looking Through Glass
Reconstructing historiography: In an Antique Land

5 Midnight’s Legacies: Two Epic Novels of Nation
Intertexts: Hatterr and Trotter
A thousand and one possibilities: Midnight’s Children
Middle-class self-fashioning: A Suitable Boy

6 Bombay and the Novel
Real and imagined citizens: Such a Long Journey
The story-factory: A Fine Balance
Millenarian dreams: The Death of Vishnu
Whose home? Baumgartner’s Bombay
The urban and the pastoral: Tara Lane
In praise of the bastard: The Moor’s Last Sigh
Meditations on neighbours: Ravan and Eddie

7 Family Matters: Domesticity and Gender in the Novel
Narrating-change: Sunlight on a Broken Column
Outside history: Twilight in Delhi
Pushing the perimeter: The Walled City
The woman I am now: Difficult Daughters
Tragic transformations: Family Matters
‘Irrelevant, middle class’? Shashi Deshpande and Anita Desai
Of ‘Small Things’

8 Imagining ‘Origins’: The Literature of Migration
The making of a diaspora
The Caribbean: A House for Mr Biswas
England: The Satanic Verses
Britain: The Buddha of Suburbia
Kenya: The In-Between World of Vikram Lall
United States: Jasmine

Conclusion: The Contemporary Scene

Notes
Bibliography
Index